Despite Soviet Antimissiles, U.S. Keeps Lead

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials have stressed that deployment of a Soviet antimissile system has not changed this basic fact in the balance of power: The United States still can destroy any enemy even one that strikes first.

Emphasizing the offensive, the officials reported Thursday that the United States still is maintaining a better than 3 to 1 edge in stockpiles of intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Production of such missiles, they said, has been programmed to assure that American rockets could effectively penetrate any antimissile system the Soviets are capable of building.

The officials acknowledged, however, that Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara will decide within 60 days whether to recommend a deployment of America's version of an antimissile system — the Nike X. They said the question is receiving very serious consideration. President Johnson would make the final decision.

McNamara announced last week that there is considerable evidence that the Soviet Union has begun deploying its antimissile system around major cities. "I think it is important that we assume it is effective and, of course, that will be the assumption on which we base the development and deployment of our own intercontinental ballistic missiles," he told newsmen at the Texas White House.

In line with that, officials revealed Thursday that the United States now has 940 Minutemen I and advanced Minutemen II missiles in its stockpile, along with 54 Titan II missiles and more than 600 Polaris missiles.

There have been published reports that the Soviets have sharply boosted their production of ICBMs, but officials — without acknowledging this — emphasized that the U.S.-Soviet relationship still is better than 3 to 1. They refused to speculate on future Soviet production and also said that their estimates of Soviet missile capabilities did not take into account the Soviet rockets now trained on European targets.

McNamara's delay in deploying the Nike X system — estimated to cost between $8 billion and $30 billion — has been sharply criticized by some members of Congress in the past and is expected to be a prime point of contention next year.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., warned Wednesday that any future delay in deploying the Nike X system could be fatal to American security.

All-English Mass Desired By Bishops

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Roman Catholic bishops have asked Rome's permission to celebrate in English the entire Mass, except for certain private prayers by the priest.

English now is widely used in the Mass in this country, except that Latin is retained in the canon, a fundamental part of the Mass. Under the proposal adopted Thursday by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and subject to approval by the Liturgical Consilium in Rome, the entire canon would be in English.

There were indications an announcement would be forthcoming today — the final day of the conference — on the question of abolishing or modifying the Church's ban on Catholics eating meat on Friday.

Asked whether a statement could be expected today on the rule, Bishop Walter W. Curtis of Bridgeport, Conn., said: "I am sure we could not go home without one."

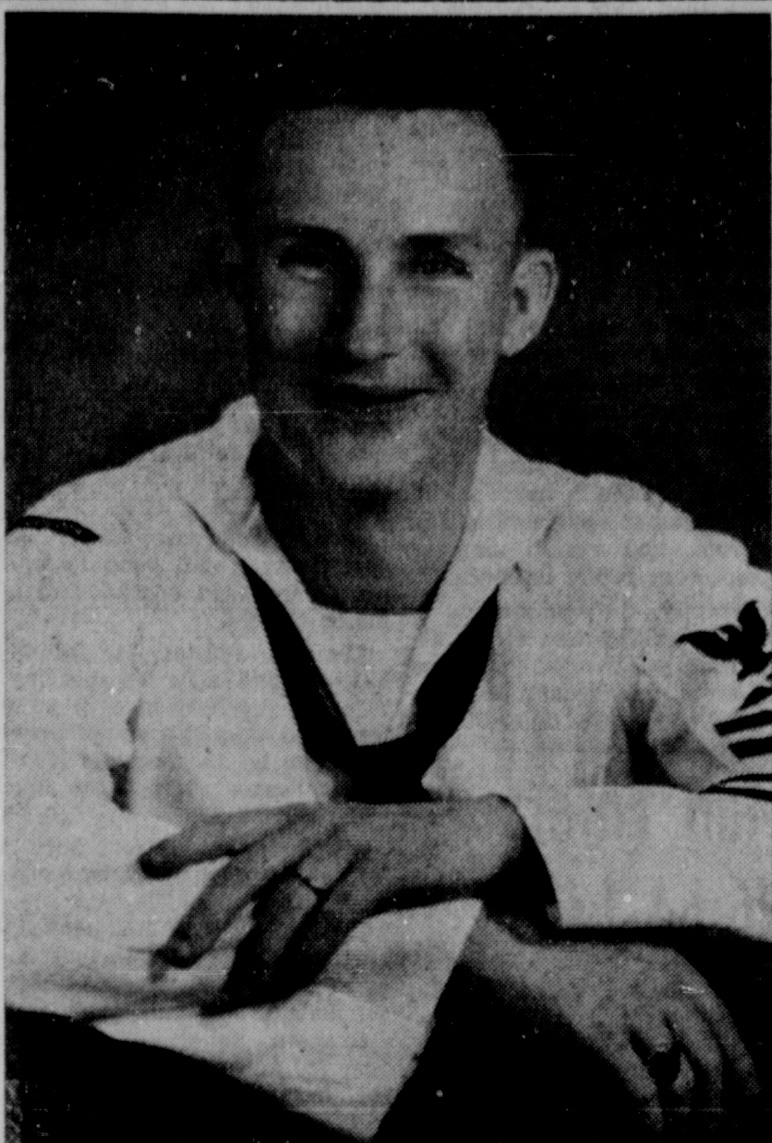

"Especially on Friday," added Archbishop Philip M. Hannan of New Orleans.

Beet Processors Hit Pricing Plan

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Sugar beet processors expressed opposition Thursday to an industry-wide pricing system based on a fixed percentage relationship with raw cane sugar prices in New York.

This new concept was proposed by sugar beet growers in two days of testimony at a U.S. Department of Agriculture hearing called to determine a fair and reasonable price for the 1967 sugar beet crop.

The present "net return" system is based on the selling price of sugar less specified sales costs and varies from market to market. A processor spokesman said growers get about 60 to 70 per cent of this net return. He said they also are seeking a higher percentage.

Navyman Pearce Missing in Crash

Glenn A. Pearce, a former Circleville resident, is one of two men listed missing after a Navy helicopter crash Thursday 100 miles off the coast of California.

Airman Pearce, 39, father of four children, was graduated at Circleville High School. He married the former Doris Allison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Allison, 171 Lancaster Pike.

The helicopter crash claimed the lives of two men. Another man reported missing has been identified by the Navy as Lt. (JG) Charles N. Tozer, 28, Coronado, Calif. Three of the personnel aboard were rescued.

Airman Pearce a veteran of 16 years in the Navy, planned to make the service a career. He and his wife lived in California the last 11 years.

THE CIRCLEVILLE sailor returned to duty in the United States in March of this year after serving eight months in the Viet Nam Theater. His helicopter squadron operated between the aircraft carrier Hornet and Ream Field, near San Diego.

The Pearce family resides at Imperial Beach close to Ream Field. The four Pearce youngsters are Cathy, 11, Melinda, 10, Gregg, 7, and Dwight, 5.

Mr. and Mrs. Allison were notified of the crash early today by way of a telephone call from their daughter. Awaiting further confirmation from the Navy Department and Mrs. Pearce, they are contemplating a trip to California to be with the family.

Airman Pearce served his first tour of duty with the Navy during the World War II period. He later returned here to finish high school in 1947, then re-entered the service. He and his wife were married in 1955.

The missing navyman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolphus

Pearce, both deceased. Relatives include two sisters, Eleanor and Leona, and a brother, Adolphus Jr., all living in California. Several uncles and aunts reside in this community.

About two years ago, Airman Pearce's helicopter squadron was accorded widespread recognition for the part it played as a rescue force during a destructive flood along the West Coast area.

AN AIR-SEA search was launched by the Navy and Coast Guard shortly after the crash, with aircraft from the carriers Yorktown and Hornet taking part. A 300-foot ceiling and a light drizzle hampered the effort, Navy officials said.

The Navy identified dead as Lt. (J. G.) James E. Gray, 25, Coronado, Calif., and Cmdr. William E. Todd, 37, Chula Vista, Calif., pilot of the helicopter.

Rescued were Lt. (J. G.) A. E. White, 26, and Airman H. B. Estrada, 24, both of Chula Vista, and Lt. Cmdr. L. R. Jacobson, who lived at North Island Naval Air Station.

School Girl's Killer Sought In Minnesota

CLOQUET, Minn. (AP) — Residents of this northern Minnesota town pledged today more than $9,000 to a Chamber of Commerce reward fund for information leading to the killer of a pretty, talented ninth-grade girl.

Police were awaiting a pathologist's report on whether the girl, Kathleen Bodie, 14, had been raped. They also were seeking a youth who reportedly dodged across Highway 33 in front of a school bus shortly after the slaying.

The girl's nude body was found in a pool of blood on the band room stage at Cloquet High School early Thursday, just 25 minutes after her father, Russell Bodie, had dropped her off at the school to practice a flute before classes.

Robert Barr, Carlton County coroner, said she died of loss of blood after being stabbed about 20 times.

Study Wreckage For Crash Clues

BERLIN (AP) — A team of American aeronautical experts has begun a study of 18 truckloads of wreckage from a Pan American World Airways cargo jet for clues that might tell why the plane crashed Tuesday in East Germany.

Pieces of the Boeing 727 and the bodies of its three American crew members were turned over to U.S. military authorities Thursday by Soviet troops.

The plane, on a mail run from Frankfurt, crashed three miles from the West Berlin border a few minutes before it was to land in the French sector. It carried no passengers.

Luxury Yachts Destroyed In Fort Lauderdale Blaze

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A wind-whipped blaze leaped from one luxury yacht to another, exploded gasoline tanks like huge firecrackers, and demolished more than a dozen expensive seacraft at a plush river marina today.

Police estimated the damage in excess of a million dollars. Three persons fled a yacht and were treated at a hospital for burns.

Police said 13 craft were declared total loss and four others heavily damaged. The vessels that burned to the waterline ranged from a 31-footer to the 102-foot cruiser Heather IV.

As many as 50 firefighters battled the flames, which raged out of control for three hours. "It was one of the worst fires I've ever seen, but we couldn't see anyone on the boats," said Lt. Jim Brown of the Fort Lauderdale Fire Department, an 11 year veteran of firefighting.

"What made it bad was that gasoline tanks caught fire," he said. At times, flames could be seen six miles away. The fire erupted shortly after midnight at the Broward Marina, where wealthy northern yachtsmen keep their craft during the winter months. The marina is on the south fork of the New River.

Although some owners use the yachts as their winter homes,

Police Chief Robert Temple today urged local residents to use extreme caution if they spot a prowler in or near their homes.

Several reports of prowlers and intruders received by police this week prompted the chief's warning. . . . Be sure all doors of the home are securely locked, Temple said. . . . He recommended that the chain type locks be installed on exterior doors. . . .

If residents spot prowlers outside their home, they should phone the police department immediately. . . . The police recommend that the lights of the home be left on in such a case. . . .

One sure way to frighten away a prowler is to suddenly turn on every light in the house police say. Any chance of catching the prowler then is immediately minimized. . . . Promptness in reporting the entry is extremely important. Several reports of prowlers and intruders have been reported to Circleville Police hours or even days after the incident occurred.

Realtors Continue Battle Against Open Housing

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The nation's real estate men ended their national convention with a pledge to continue their fight against open-housing legislation.

The realtors, representing some 83,000 members across the nation, passed a resolution pledging "aggressive resistance to any action which would vest in government, at any level, control over the sale or rental of private property."

The resolution was adopted at Thursday's final session shortly after Robert C. Weaver, secretary of housing and urban development, asked the delegates to support the government's open-housing policies.

"It is urgent. It is legally mandatory. It is morally right. And, furthermore, it is good business," Weaver said.

Leaders Agree On War Danger

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — The Viet Nam war could be ended on the basis of the 1954 Geneva agreement and respect for the rights and interests of the Vietnamese people, Emperor Haile Selassie and Czechoslovak President Antonin Novotny said in a joint communique today.

Issued after a five-day visit by Novotny, the communique said he and Selassie "agreed the war constitutes a serious threat to world peace and international security."

30 Churches To Participate In Countywide Census Sunday

More than 30 churches and 400 workers will participate in a countywide church census on Sunday afternoon. The project is being conducted by the Pickaway County Ministerial Assn.

A training session for all pastors and workers was held Thursday evening at the First Baptist Church. Area assignments were made and the response of the pastors and workers was "let's get the job done thoroughly."

Volunteer workers will attempt to contact every home in Pickaway County between 1 and 5 p. m. on Sunday. Workers can be recognized by a red and yellow "Hello" identification tag.

Rev. Joe P. Weldon, chairman of the census committee, pointed out in the training session that the cost of the census materials will be covered by each participating church contributing $10. It was determined that the pastors are the division leaders for the city and county.

fire and police officials said they doubted that anyone was on board. Some of the boats were in the marina for repairs.

The cause of the fire was not known.

Fort Lauderdale Fire Chief M. T. Whidby said at least 17 boats were either completely burned or heavily damaged.

OFB Approves Plan To Enter Food Business

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Farm Bureau Federation approved a policy recommendation today to go into the food processing and retailing business to give members "more market muscle."

It has one of 60 policy resolutions up for a vote at the final session of the annual federation meeting.

The resolutions approved will be forwarded to the national organization for action, a spokesman said.

The marketing resolution said the farmers could go into the supermarket business by formation of a holding company controlled by the bureau to secure the financing and provide the capital for marketing programs.

Another proposal, due for later action, is a resolution calling for housewives and other "organized efforts to drive food prices down."

26 Vessels Pounded by Destroyers

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. warships bombarded cargo vessels along a 10-mile stretch of North Viet Nam today in a renewal of the 7th Fleet's new campaign to cut the seaborne flow of Communist supplies to the South.

The Navy reported 26 cargo boats destroyed or damaged in the bombardment by two destroyers ranging 20 to 30 miles north of the demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam.

The U.S. command reported only small and scattered ground action in South Viet Nam, while Vietnamese headquarters reported a series of Viet Cong harassing attacks with mortars and mines that ranged from one end of the country to the other.

On the political front, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky announced six changes in the civilian cabinet in an effort to end the eight-week-old dispute between southern cabinet ministers and northern cabinet ministers dominating the ruling military junta. Reports of friction persisted after a stormy meeting of top leaders Thursday night and further changes were thought likely.

For the seventh day in a row, monsoon rains and generally poor weather cut heavily into U.S. air strikes Thursday against North Viet Nam. U.S. pilots flew only 52 missions, about one third the average during good weather.

U.S. military sources said the North Vietnamese are taking advantage of the foul weather to rush repairs of roads, bridges and rail lines.

Guam based B52 bombers struck today in Tay Ninh Province for the ninth consecutive day in support of Operation Attleboro, the 30,000-man hunt by U.S. ground forces to flush the Viet Cong out of a major stronghold 60 miles northwest of Saigon.

Only light ground contact was reported in Operation Attleboro, but U.S. headquarters announced that the number of enemy killed so far in the month-old operation passed the 1,000 mark.

The U.S. force in Tay Ninh reported killing about 20 more Viet Cong by air strikes and raised to 1,009 the total enemy officially reported killed since

'Psywar' Uses An Avalanche Of Leaflets

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Enough paper to reach more than twice around the earth at the equator has been dropped on North Viet Nam by American planes.

More than 400 million propaganda leaflets have been dumped on the Communist-controlled north since April 1965.

Such psychological warfare—called psywar here—"is not going to win the war but it will make a real contribution by wearing down morale," said one U.S. intelligence man.

The main purpose of the leaflet barrage is to win Communist soldiers over to the Saigon government.

They are also aimed at discouraging northerners from repairing roads and bridges destroyed by U.S. bomb strikes.

To cripple Communist savings, counterfeit North Vietnamese bank notes are dropped along with the message: "As the war goes on there will be less and less to buy. Prices will go higher. Your savings will become worthless paper."

Preparation of the leaflets is a complex process. Subject matter is developed jointly by U.S. and Vietnamese experts in Saigon.

Most are dropped in the Red River delta near Hanoi by high-flying planes.

MINISTERS' EFFORT — These members of the Pickaway County Ministerial Assn. are responsible for planning a countywide church census slated for Sunday. They are, left to right: the Rev. Joe P. Weldon, Rev. Paul Wachs, Rev. Foster Jenne, Rev. Richard Frasure, Rev. Allen Gallimore, Rev. Eugene Flowers and the Rev. John Dennis. The Rev. Henry Walters was unable to be present for the picture.

Once Around Roundtown

POLICE CHIEF Robert Temple today urged local residents to use extreme caution if they spot a prowler in or near their homes.

Several reports of prowlers and intruders received by police this week prompted the chief's warning. Be sure all doors of the home are securely locked, Temple said. He recommended that the chain type locks be installed on exterior doors.

If residents spot prowlers outside their home, they should phone the police department immediately. The police recommend that the lights of the home be left off in such a case.

One sure way to frighten away a prowler is to suddenly turn on every light in the house, police say. Any chance of catching the prowler then is immediately minimized.

Promptness in reporting the entry is extremely important. Several reports of prowlers and intruders have been reported to Circleville Police hours or even days after the incident occurred.

Realtors Continue Battle Against Open Housing

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The nation's real estate men ended their national convention with a pledge to continue their fight against open-housing legislation.

The realtors, representing some 83,000 members across the nation, passed a resolution pledging "aggressive resistance to any action which would vest in government, at any level, control over the sale or rental of private property."

The resolution was adopted at Thursday's final session shortly after Robert C. Weaver, secretary of housing and urban development, asked the delegates to support the government's open-housing policies.

"It is urgent. It is legally mandatory. It is morally right. And, furthermore, it is good business," Weaver said.

Leaders Agree On War Danger

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — The Viet Nam war could be ended on the basis of the 1954 Geneva agreement and respect for the rights and interests of the Vietnamese people, Emperor Haile Selassie and Czechoslovak President Antonin Novotny said in a joint communique today.

Issued after a five-day visit by Novotny, the communique said he and Selassie "agreed the war constitutes a serious threat to world peace and international security."

Volunteer workers will attempt to contact every home in Pickaway County between 1 and 5 p. m. on Sunday. Workers can be recognized by a red and yellow "Hello" identification tag.

Rev. Joe P. Weldon, chairman of the census committee, pointed out in the training session that the cost of the census materials will be covered by each participating church contributing $10. It was determined that the pastors are the division leaders for the city and county.

Rev. Wiley Baker, pastor of the Pickaway Charge EUB Church; Rev. John Dennis, pastor of the Church of the Nazarenes; Rev. Eugene Flowers, pastor of the First EUB Church; Rev. Foster Jenne, pastor of Emmett Chapel Methodist Church; Rev. Allen Gallimore, pastor of the Jefferson Church of Christ in Christian Union; Rev. Paul L. Wachs, pastor of First Methodist Church; Rev. Henry Walters, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church; and the Rev. Richard Frasure, pastor of the East Ringgold EUB Church.

More than 400 million propaganda leaflets have been dumped on the Communist-controlled north since April 1965.

Such psychological warfare—called psywar here—"is not going to win the war but it will make a real contribution by wearing down morale," said one U.S. intelligence man.

The main purpose of the leaflet barrage is to win Communist soldiers over to the Saigon government.

They are also aimed at discouraging northerners from repairing roads and bridges destroyed by U.S. bomb strikes.

To cripple Communist savings, counterfeit North Vietnamese bank notes are dropped along with the message: "As the war goes on there will be less and less to buy. Prices will go higher. Your savings will become worthless paper."

Preparation of the leaflets is a complex process. Subject matter is developed jointly by U.S. and Vietnamese experts in Saigon.

Most are dropped in the Red River delta near Hanoi by high-flying planes.

Tape Programs Affected by AFTRA Crisis

Federal Mediator Seeks To Avert Networks Walkout

NEW YORK (AP) — Union-ordered work stoppages on some taped television programs added urgency today to a federal mediator's initial effort to avert a threatened strike against the nation's major television and radio networks.

The AFL-CIO American Federation of Television and Radio Artists invoked the work stoppages Thursday against taped television shows whose producers would not agree to keep reruns off the air in the event of a strike.

One of the first affected was the Johnny Carson "Tonight" program. At the union's direction, Carson and his cast stayed away from their regular early evening taping session and the National Broadcasting Co. filled the late night slot with a Carson rerun.

A taping session for NBC's daytime serial "The Doctors" was canceled Thursday when cast members walked out after a rehearsal.

Master of ceremonies Gene Rayburn and announcer Johnny Olsen refused to tape a third half-hour episode of another NBC daytime show, the "Match Game," after completing two tapings earlier in the day.

"We have told our members not to appear in a prerecording unless they know that the producer has signed the agreement," an AFTRA spokesman said.

Canceled taping sessions in Hollywood included NBC's "Swinging Country" and "You Don't Say." Many shows are taped weeks before they are to be aired, and the effect of Thursday's stoppages might not be apparent immediately.

Contracts between the networks and the unions — AFTRA and the AFL-CIO Screen Actors Guild — expired at midnight Tuesday and negotiations collapsed some four hours later.

Koufax To Call It Quits, Report

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers reportedly will call a news conference today and announce the retirement of pitching star Sandy Koufax.

Baseball writer Phil Collier of the San Diego Union, writing under a Los Angeles dateline, said that while the club has not publicly announced the news conference, the newspaper had learned exclusively that it will be called and the 30-year-old southpaw pitcher will call it quits.

Efforts to reach Koufax were unsuccessful.

The reason will be because of Sandy's chronic and painful arithmetic condition of his pitching elbow, the story said.

Moon Photos Go Haywire

Appear To Be Double-Exposed

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Lunar Orbiter 2 made its first try today at photographing lunar terrain where astronauts may land — but the pictures may have been double exposures.

The Jet Propulsion Laboratory said telemetry from the spacecraft indicates that the shutter clicked twice as many times as it should have in a 16-frame sequence.

The photographs, expected to show surface details as small as three feet across, would have been the first capable of pinpointing potential sites for a planned manned moon landing by U.S. space voyagers later in this decade.

What actually happened won't be known until picture transmissions to a tracking station at Madrid, Spain, are studied.

The U.S. space agency had planned to release prints of one or more photos at Madrid several hours after the transmissions, with more released here to-night.

Plans called for the photographs to be snapped at the low point of a 30-by-1,150-mile orbit into which the spacecraft was steered by remote control after launch Nov. 7.

At this altitude, Lunar Orbiter 2's high resolution camera was expected to show water slopes in the target area — gentle enough for Apollo program landing craft, due to be launched in 1968, to land on without toppling.

A spokesman said Lunar Orbiter 2 would snap more than 400 high and medium resolution pictures over the next eight days and radio them to earth periodically over the next month.

These pictures will cover 13 possible landing sites in a zone along the moon's equator.

Head Start Budget OK'd

Trustees Meet With New Director

Pickaway County Community Action Organization's Board of Trustees met for the first time Thursday evening with the group's new director, Mrs. Gloria Pike.

A Head Start program for next summer was adopted and submitted to the regional office of Economic Opportunity in Chicago for approval. Deadline for presenting the program is Nov. 30.

Budget for the pre-school age children's program was set by trustees at $43,448. Some of the budget items included a $500 staff director's salary; $5 per hour for teachers (four hours per day including three in class and one in the home); $450 monthly salary for a full time social worker; $450 monthly salary for a nutritionist; $2 per hour for cooks; $2 per hour for janitors; and $2.75 per hour for bus drivers.

Mrs. Pike reported to trustees on her attendance at recent meetings in Chicago and Jackson. She listed some of the programs that have been adopted by other community action groups. She asked that trustees bring suggestions for programs to the group's next meeting.

E. G. Grigg, president, presided at the meeting attended by nine trustees and the new director.

The group decided that a concentrated effort is necessary to gain better attendance and participation at the meetings of the board, executive committee and general membership.

A general membership meeting has been slated for 8 p. m. of Dec. 1, and an all-out effort will be made to get as many members to attend as possible.

Ohio Bond Issue Proposed To Finance Water Projects

E. F. Leist, Circleville public utilities manager, was one of two men heading a study that recommended passage of a state bond issue to finance water management plans and projects in Ohio.

The proposal came after a nine month study by the 125-member Water Management Advisory Council was completed. Serving with Leist as chairman of the council was R. L. Ireland of Cleveland.

The council was appointed to study the state's dwindling supply of water.

The council, composed of representatives of agriculture, commerce, industry, public interests and recreation groups said the state should administer design and construct projects and also provide matching funds for other public bodies' water projects.

Establishment of a state water resources agency was recommended to give water control status. The Ohio Water Commission, the report said, should be equal but separate from other state departments, have a full-time chairman appointed by the governor, and a fifth member to represent public interests.

Currently, the commission is made up of directors of the departments of natural resources and development and four members of water-using interests.

Italian Farm Areas Menaced By New Floods

Sea Backs Up; Dozen Villages Are Evacuated

ROVIGO, Italy (AP) — A dozen villages in the southernmost Po delta were evacuated hurriedly during the night as the waters of the stormy Adriatic sea backed up over thousands of acres of farmland. Dikes guarding dozens of other villages were threatened.

A total of 10,000 delta residents now have been taken to higher ground, but hundreds of stubborn villagers and truck farmers clung to their homes and lands despite impassioned official warnings.

Although clear skies returned to the low-lying coastal lands of the south of Venice after 30 hours of continuous rain, officials said the danger to weakened earth and stone levees holding back the Adriatic was not over. They said all the delta's defenses — 55 miles of levees — were in danger of collapse.

The Po, Italy's largest river, rose several inches.

"It's the wind we're afraid of now," said an official in this provincial capital about 45 miles southwest of Venice. "If it starts up again and the sea rises, I don't think those embankments will hold up."

Soldiers and local volunteers evacuated hundreds by boat and by truck along a single road that remained open.

The stormy weather over most of northeast Italy Thursday came as a bitter blow to thousands of the country's flood victims.

Rain softened mudslides farther to the north in Dolomite Valleys, and as much as 15 inches of snow fell on high mountain slopes, cutting off some villages near Austria.

The government ordered a 10 per cent hike in income taxes last week and raised gasoline taxes to finance an $800 million flood disaster program.

The winds and tossing waters that menaced the delta were having an opposite effect on Venice, north of the delta.

Venice was left badly exposed to the sea by the Nov. 4 floods that crippled a third of Italy. The canal city had been awash; its protective dikes were torn away or weakened.

Officials at Venice said the winds now blowing from the northeast were keeping sea water from piling up and surging toward the city. They said the anxiety since Nov. 4 has been over the danger of strong winds from the south carrying the Adriatic once more into Venice.

Man Enters Home by 'Mistake'

An intruder entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Max Noggle, 432 Stella Ave., at 12:30 a. m. today but escaped before police could be summoned.

The stranger walked in the rear door of the home. Mrs. Noggle heard the noise and went to investigate.

Noggle then awoke and grabbed the man just before he left the house. However, the man struggled free, saying he had entered the wrong house by mistake.

The Noggles immediately reported the entry to police.

At 4:45 p. m. yesterday, Morton Beurtin, 220 E. Franklin St., reported an alleged entry which occurred Tuesday of this week. He told police that whoever entered his home "took cigarettes and a lighter."

Student Council Severs Relations With Michigan U.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The University of Michigan student government council Thursday night broke off relations with the school, with the main issue over student demands to participate in decisions by the university's administration.

The student council voted Tuesday to break off relations with the university unless a ban on sit-in demonstrations was lifted Thursday.

Richard L. Cutler, university vice president for student affairs, last Sunday ordered the ban on campus sit-in demonstrations if they interfered with the orderly process of the university.

Two demonstrations were staged recently in the offices of vice presidents to protest the membership lists of campus organizations to the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Young Germantown Soldier Hunts for Thailand Bride

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)—Spec 4 Joseph Mikesell married a pretty Oriental girl about four months ago and they began thinking of a life in the United States.

But today, the whereabouts of his bride, Pramul, are unknown and the soldier says he intends to re-enlist in the Army and return to Thailand to search for her.

Mikesell, 20, of nearby Germantown, married Pramul, 18 in Thailand in August. They were together until Aug. 28 when Mikesell was sent back to the states to Camp Lee Va.

On Sep. 30, Pramul left camp friendship in Thailand for Bangkok to complete arrangements for passport and visa so she could come to the U.S.

She hasn't been seen or heard from since, says her soldier husband.

On advice of the Red Cross here, the soldier's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mikesell, sent plane fare and extra money to Pramul in Bangkok. But investigations showed it was never picked up.

Also, the soldier reported he had learned Pramul had not picked up allotment checks he sent her.

Mikesell described Pramul as "rather studious" and said she had gone to a San Francisco high school as an exchange student, graduating in 1955.

They actually went through the marriage ceremonies, as required by Thai and American law.

His parents have never seen Pramul.

He Grabbed Wrong Coil; It Objected

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Laurie Spicer decided to move a sprinkler watering the front lawn on his farm 250 miles east of Perth. To save the trouble of turning off the sprinkler, he ran under it to grab the hose, bend it and stop the flow of water.

Spicer grabbed and was about to bend the "hose" when it squirmed violently in his hands.

The horrified Spicer found he had grabbed a deadly, 5-foot copperhead snake which apparently was cooling off under the sprinkler.

He dropped the snake just as it struck and its fangs went into his boot. He killed the snake with an iron bar.

"Lucky for me I was not wearing sandals," said Spicer.

West Coast Strike Hurts War Effort

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An electricians' strike opposed by other shipyard unions continued today in West Coast repair facilities after talks broke off in Washington.

Three days of fruitless negotiations ended Thursday. Both sides had been called to Washington Tuesday in an effort to end the two-week strike that could affect the Viet Nam war effort. Many ships under repair in the yards are used in the war effort.

In Portland, Ore., steamfitters returned to work for the first time since Nov. 4 following a Circuit Court injunction preventing their union officials from stopping the men from going to work.

More than 95 per cent of the machinists had continued to work in Portland and the majority of workers in the Seattle-Puget Sound area also have ignored the electricians' picket lines.

Although the electricians' picket lines have not been crossed at San Francisco area yards, other shipyard unions have urged withdrawal of the lines.

Moon Photos Go Haywire

Appear To Be Double-Exposed

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Lunar Orbiter 2 made its first try today at photographing lunar terrain where astronauts may land — but the pictures may have been double exposures.

The Jet Propulsion Laboratory said telemetry from the spacecraft indicates that the shutter clicked twice as many times as it should have in a 16-frame sequence.

The photographs, expected to show surface details as small as three feet across, would have been the first capable of pinpointing potential sites for a planned manned moon landing by U.S. space voyagers later in this decade.

What actually happened won't be known until picture transmissions to a tracking station at Madrid, Spain, are studied.

The U.S. space agency had planned to release prints of one or more photos at Madrid several hours after the transmissions, with more released here tonight.

Plans called for the photographs to be snapped at the low point of a 30-by-1,150-mile orbit into which the spacecraft was launched by remote control after launch Nov. 7.

At this altitude Lunar Orbiter 2's high resolution camera was expected to show whether slopes in the target area are gentle enough for Apollo program landing craft, due to be launched in 1968, to land on without toppling.

A spokesman said Lunar Orbiter 2 would snap more than 100 high and medium resolution pictures over the next eight days and radio them to earth periodically over the next month.

These pictures will cover 13 possible landing sites in a zone along the moon's equator.

Ohio Bond Issue Proposed To Finance Water Projects

Italian Farm Areas Menaced By New Floods

Sea Backs Up; Dozen Villages Are Evacuated

ROVIGO, Italy (AP) — A dozen villages in the southernmost Po delta were evacuated hurriedly during the night as the waters of the stormy Adriatic sea backed up over thousands of acres of farmland. Dikes guarding dozens of other villages were threatened.

A total of 10,000 delta residents now have been taken to higher ground, but hundreds of stubborn villagers and truck farmers clung to their homes and lands despite impassioned official warnings.

Although clear skies returned to the low-lying coastal lands south of Venice after 30 hours of continuous rain, officials said the danger to weakened earth and stone levees holding back the Adriatic was not over. They said all the delta's defenses — 55 miles of levees — were in danger of collapse.

The Po, Italy's largest river, rose several inches.

"It's the wind we're afraid of now," said an official in this provincial capital about 45 miles southwest of Venice. "If it starts up again and the sea rises, I don't think those embankments will hold up."

Soldiers and local volunteers evacuated hundreds by boat and by truck along a single road that remained open.

The stormy weather over most of northeast Italy Thursday came as a bitter blow to thousands of the country's flood victims.

Rain softened mudslides farther to the north in Dolomite Valleys, and as much as 15 inches of snow fell on high mountain slopes, cutting off some villages near Austria.

The government ordered a 10 per cent hike in income taxes last week and raised gasoline taxes to finance an $800 million flood disaster program.

The winds and tossing waters that menaced the delta were having an opposite effect on Venice, north of the delta.

Venice was left badly exposed to the sea by the Nov. 4 floods that crippled a third of Italy. The canal city had been awash; its protective dikes were torn away or weakened.

Officials at Venice said the winds now blowing from the northeast were keeping sea water from piling up and surging toward the city. They said the anxiety since Nov. 4 has been over the danger of strong winds from the south carrying the Adriatic once more into Venice.

County Auditors Meet at Courthouse

Pickaway County Auditor Marvin H. Rhoades was hostess to a meeting of the Southwestern District of County Auditors today at her office in the Courthouse.

Approximately 20 auditors of the 23-county district were expected to attend the monthly roundtable meeting.

Subjects coming under discussion included tax rates and subdivision budgets.

man of the council was R. L. Ireland of Cleveland.

The council was appointed to study the state's dwindling supply of water.

The council, composed of representatives of agriculture, commerce, industry, public interests and recreation groups said, the state should administer design and construct projects and also provide matching funds for other public bodies' water projects.

Establishment of a state water resources agency was recommended to give water control status. The Ohio Water Commission, the report said, should be equal but separate from other state departments, have a full-time chairman appointed by the governor, and a fifth member to represent public interests.

Currently, the commission is made up of directors of the departments of natural resources and development and four members of water-using interests.

Man Enters Home by 'Mistake'

An intruder entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Max Noggle, 432 Stella Ave., at 12:30 a. m. today but escaped before police could be summoned.

The stranger walked in the rear door of the home. Mrs. Noggle heard the noise and went to investigate.

Noggle then awoke and grabbed the man just before he left the house. However, the man struggled free, saying he had entered the wrong house by mistake.

The Noggles immediately reported the entry to police.

At 4:45 p. m. yesterday, Morton Beurtou, 220 E. Franklin St., reported an alleged entry which occurred Tuesday of this week. He told police that whoever entered his home 'ook cigarettes and a lighter.

Student Council Severs Relations With Michigan U.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The University of Michigan student government council Thursday night broke off relations with the school, with the main issue over student demands to participate in decisions by the university's administration.

The student council voted Tuesday to break off relations with the university unless a ban on sit-in demonstrations was lifted Thursday.

Richard L. Cutler, university vice president for student affairs, last Sunday ordered the ban on campus sit-in demonstrations if they interfered with the orderly process of the university.

Two demonstrations were staged recently in the offices of vice presidents to protest the membership lists of campus organizations to the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Young Germantown Soldier Hunts for Thailand Bride

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)—Spec 4 Joseph Mikesell married a pretty Oriental girl about four months ago and they began thinking of a life in the United States.

But today, the whereabouts of his bride, Pramul, are unknown and the soldier says he intends to re-enlist in the Army and return to Thailand to search for her.

Mikesell, 20, of nearby Germantown, married Pramul, 18 in Thailand in August. They were together until Aug. 28 when Mikesell was sent back to the states to Camp Lee Va.

On Sep. 30, Pramul left camp for passport and visa so she could come to the U.S.

She hasn't been seen or heard from since, says the soldier's husband.

On advice of the Red Cross here, the soldier's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mikesell, sent plane fare and extra money to Pramul in Bangkok. But investigations showed it was never picked up.

Also, the soldier reported he had learned Pramul had not picked up allotment checks he sent her.

Mikesell described Pramul as "rather studious" and said she had gone to a San Francisco high school as an exchange student, graduating in 1965.

They actually went through the marriage ceremonies, as required by Thia and American law.

His parents have never seen Pramul.

He Grabbed Wrong Coil; It Objected

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Laurie Spicer decided to move a sprinkler watering the front lawn on his farm 250 miles east of Perth. To save the trouble of turning off the sprinkler, he ran under it to grab the hose, bend it and stop the flow of water.

Spicer grabbed and was about to bend the "hose" when it squirmed violently in his hands.

The horrified Spicer found he had grabbed a deadly, 5-foot copperhead snake which apparently was cooling off under the sprinkler.

He dropped the snake just as it struck and its fangs went into his boot. He killed the snake with an iron bar.

"Lucky for me I was not wearing sandals," said Spicer.

West Coast Strike Hurts War Effort

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An electricians' strike opposed by other shipyard unions continued today in West Coast repair facilities after talks broke off in Washington.

Three days of fruitless negotiations ended Thursday. Both sides had been called to Washington Tuesday in an effort to end the two-week strike that could affect the Viet Nam war effort. Many ships under repair in the yards are used in the war effort.

In Portland, Ore., steamfitters returned to work for the first time since Nov. 4 following a Circuit Court injunction preventing their union officials from stopping the men from going to work.

More than 95 per cent of the machinists had continued to work in Portland and the majority of workers in the Seattle-Puget Sound area also have ignored the electricians' picket lines.

Although the electricians' picket lines have not been crossed at San Francisco area yards, other shipyard unions have urged withdrawal of the lines.

Tax Reappraisal Costs Pose Problem; No State Funds for Ohio Counties

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio counties faced with increased property appraisal costs apparently have no alternative other than to work out the problem themselves.

State law requires counties to have complete reappraisals made for tax purposes every six years but provides no state funds. Neither does the law set price restrictions on private firms which contract with counties to do the work.

J. Edwin Ducey, who heads the state board of tax appeals' county affairs division, said "the board doesn't enter into the negotiations." He added, however, that if the board regards a particular payment as excessive, "naturally it is going to ask some questions."

The board may approve or disapprove reappraisal filings, and it does have what Ducey called "a long list of regulations and reappraisal procedures" which the private companies must follow.

Ducey was asked about a recent action by the Licking County Commissioners in which they, by means of a resolution, refused to appropriate a $179,000 balance of a $229,000 contract with a private appraisal firm.

Commissioners previously appropriated $30,000 to pay for the first year of appraisals due to be completed by June 30, 1968. In rejecting the balance, commissioners objected, among other things, to a cost for the total package $60,000 above what the price was six years ago.

Auditor Aurel E. Coffman defended the contract as being the best available at the price and said he would ask the board of tax appeals to overrule the resolution. But Ducey said the matter was one that will have to be resolved locally, unless the dispute carries over into next year when another payment is due.

"There is nothing before the board at this time. But what happens next year, if the commissioners still refuse to let the money go, is another question," Ducey said.

Ducey described the $60,000 increase in the contract as being "pretty much in line with increases other counties have had to pay" and said he regarded the boost as "only natural in the face of rising costs of materials, labor, and other things."

Here's How To Go on Relief Despite Millionaire Status

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Otto Orkin, the pest-control millionaire with no spending money, won't have to go on relief after all.

The plight of the Latvian immigrant, 78, drew wide attention early this month when his wife applied for welfare funds and government surplus food because Orkin's fortune was tied up in a trust fund and the courts.

Since then, the Orkins say, they have received letters of encouragement, cash donations of $1 to $50 and an invitation to live with one newspaper reader.

And the couple's attorney says trustees of the Orkin estate have set up limited credit with grocery stores, druggists and laundries.

Starting in Allentown, Pa., with a homemade rat poison and a third grade education, Orkin developed a $65-million extermination business with 400 branches in 28 states.

After years of litigation in intra family financial squabbles and sanity hearings, Orkin was ruled mentally incompetent in 1964.

His third wife, with whom he lives in suburban Smyrna, is custodian of his person but not of his property.

Mrs. Orkin applied for aid from the Cobb County Welfare Department Oct. 31 and received a card entitling the couple to draw surplus beans, lard, meal, rice and peanut butter.

Mrs. Orkin was removed as guardian of Orkin's property in 1965 and a businessman was named in her place. This year the Orkins petitioned a county court to remove the businessman. The court said that according to provisions of the Orkin trust it had no jurisdiction over the property.

This made it impossible for the property guardian to receive any trust funds for the Orkins, and they were left without an income.

Now the Orkins have filed suit to remove the trustees of the estate or to obtain more of the trust's income. The suit is to be heard next week in Fulton County (Atlanta) Superior Court.

Tax Reappraisal Costs Pose Problem; No State Funds for Ohio Counties

Ducey was asked about a recent action by the Licking County Commissioners in which they, by means of a resolution, refused to appropriate a $179,000 balance of a $229,000 contract with a private appraisal firm.

Commissioners previously appropriated $50,000 to pay for the first year of appraisals due to be completed by June 30, 1968. In rejecting the balance, commissioners objected, among other things, to a cost for the total package $60,000 above what the price was six years ago.

Auditor Aurel E. Coffman defended the contract as being the best available at the price and said he would ask the board of tax appeals to overrule the resolution. Ducey described the $60,000 increase in the contract as being "pretty much in line with increases other counties have had to pay" and said he regarded the boost as "only natural in the face of rising costs of materials, labor, and other things."

A survey of 13 counties which presently have reappraisals under way showed two are facing higher costs increases than Licking which is paying 39 per cent more than it did six years ago.

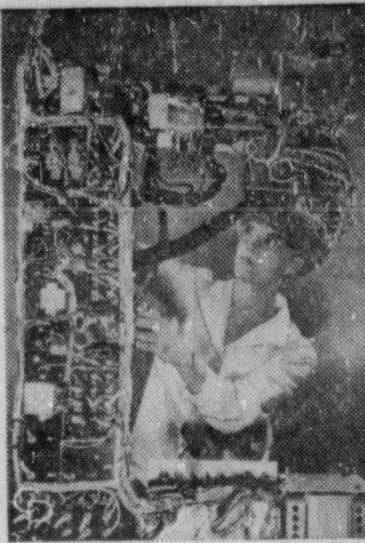

Hancock County showed an increase of 49 per cent and Tuscarawas 43 per cent.

Washington County listed an increase of 13 per cent, followed by Lawrence and Columbiana, both 24 per cent; Holmes 23, Meigs 18, Monroe 17, Adams 16, Hocking 13 Scioto 12 and Paulding 5.

Costs of appraisals very widely in counties but Ducey said the board keeps track of averages by figuring per parcel cost and the cost per thousand dollars of valuation.

"These have shown that the costs are up but not enough to be the basis for commotion," Ducey said, adding that the figures do show the difference over a six-year period.

He said appraisal firms also have to project costs over a period of years in some cases. These include Cuyahoga County which already has a contract for reappraisals due for completion in 1970. Cuyahoga County has about a half million parcels, Ducey said, compared to only about 11,000 for small Vinson County.

"I wanted to teach him how to box," said the elder Marm, a former amateur boxer. "But he just wasn't interested."

"But he must have plenty of fight from the reports we got back," he said.

The reports said Marm, 25, and his platoon from the 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division were pinned down by a machine gun in a bunker on Nov. 14, 1965 during the battle of Chu Pont Mountain. Bullets raked the American positions, killing some of Marm's men.

Marm, a second lieutenant, set out alone for the nest. Although wounded he knocked it out, killing 18 of the enemy.

Marm, who has three sisters, went to Officer's Candidate School after graduating from the School of Pharmacy at Duquesne University in Pittsburgh in 1964.

He now is stationed in the Ranger department of the infantry school at Ft. Benning, Ga.

New Express Route Bypasses Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — Automobile travelers to and from the New York Thruway after next Wednesday will be able to bypass Cleveland traffic by using a new expressway route connecting the Ohio Turnpike and Interstate 90, which becomes the thruway.

The Ohio Turnpike Commission said the connection follows Ohio 8 and Interstate 271 between turnpike exit 12 at Akron and I-90 northeast of Cleveland.

Chrysler Tests Powerful Rocket

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — An uprated version of a Saturn 1 booster rocket fired its powerful engines successfully for 35 seconds Thursday.

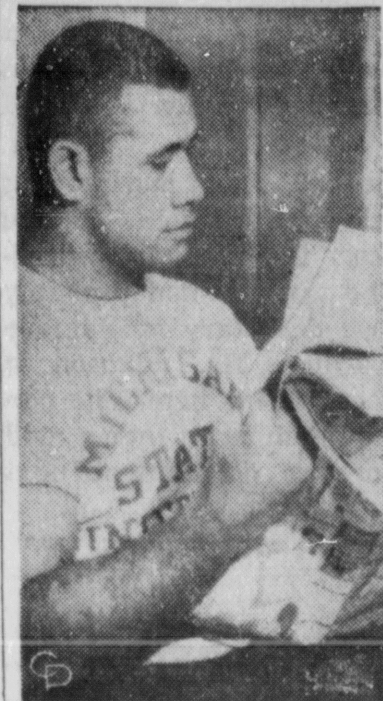

The test conducted by the Chrysler Corp. at the Marshall Space Flight Center with the rocket on a stand was the eighth in a series of 12 uprated tests of the same design.

The Saturn 1 engines generated 1.6-million pounds of thrust during the test.

A second test firing of 145 seconds is planned in about two weeks. The vehicle then will be shipped to the Marshall Center's Michoud assembly facility at New Orleans for post static firing checkout.

Here's How To Go on Relief Despite Millionaire Status

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Otto Orkin, the pest-control millionaire with no spending money, won't have to go on relief after all.

The plight of the Latvian immigrant, 78, drew wide attention early this month when his wife applied for welfare funds and government surplus food because Orkin's fortune was tied up in a trust fund and the courts.

Since then, the Orkins say, they have received letters of encouragement, cash donations of $1 to $50 and an invitation to live with one newspaper reader.

And the couple's attorney says trustees of the Orkin estate have set up limited credit with grocery stores, druggists and laundries.

Starting in Allentown, Pa., with a homemade rat poison and a third grade education, Orkin developed a $65-million extermination business with 400 branches in 28 states.

After years of litigation in intra family financial squabbles and sanity hearings, Orkin was ruled mentally incompetent in 1964.

His third wife, with whom he lives in suburban Smyrna, is custodian of his person but not of his property.

Mrs. Orkin applied for aid from the Cobb County Welfare Department Oct. 31 and received a card entitling the couple to draw surplus beans, lard, meal, rice and peanut butter.

Mrs. Orkin was removed as guardian of Orkin's property in 1965 and a businessman was named in her place. This year the Orkins petitioned a county court to remove the businessman. The court said that according to provisions of the Orkin trust it had no jurisdiction over the property.

This made it impossible for the property guardian to receive any trust funds for the Orkins, and they were left without an income.

Now the Orkins have filed suit to remove the trustees of the estate or to obtain more of the trust's income. The suit is to be heard next week in Fulton County (Atlanta) Superior Court.

Schools Get Airborne TV From Purdue

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Special DC-6 television aircraft which circle over Montpelier, Ind., four days each week, now are beaming lessons to more than 750,000 students in six states.

They are operated by Midwest Airborne Educational Television Instruction, based at Purdue University.

The project had 1,750 members in mid-November, including public, private and parochial schools. They included elementary schools, high schools and universities.

H. A. Bohnhorst, general manager of the enterprise, said today the 1966-67 broadcast schedule includes more than 30 courses. They are beamed from 23,000 feet simultaneously over two channels from videotape.

The signal covers 144,000 square miles in Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin and Kentucky.

A new course this year is in space age science and was produced in Orlando Fla., with assistance from Cape Kennedy and NASA.

Member schools pay $2 per student a year. That, with income from member fees and rental of materials throughout the nation will give the project a balanced budget in 1966-67.

Word on Taxes

The long upward trend in interest rates is now "past history," President Johnson has been advised by his Council of Economic Advisers. But business apparently is still under the influence despite the council's report that the nation has now experienced two consecutive months of easing interest rates.

After its monthly survey, the National Association of Purchasing Agents said "there is little doubt but that the near-chaotic money situation is being felt across the board in business, from inventory policy to capital expansion." Evidence that tight money is causing a change in buying policy is the abrupt drop in inventory accumulation reported by the association.

The conflict between the economic council's roseate report on interest rates and what is actually going on in the money market merely adds to the "various uncertainties" deplored by the purchasing agents. An example of another major uncertainty bothering individuals as well as business is what the administration intends to do about taxes now that the election is out of the way.

Thus far the public has had nothing but high-level contradictions on the subject of taxes. The man who will finally settle the tax question probably will be Defense Secretary McNamara who has informed Mr. Johnson it would be several weeks before he can determine how much extra money will be needed for his department next year.

Rampaging Prices

Those who would feed nostalgic memories of the Old West by savoring buffalo steaks can now again satiate their craving. None were available several months ago, and the price has now gone to $2.95 a pound, according to a New York store which stocks gourmet foods.

There won't be any antelope this year, is the word just released by the store, which finds demand for exotic foods greater than the supply. Chukar partridges can still be had for $9.95 a pair. Black bear steak has soared $1.50 a pound this year, to $4.75.

Pioneers who at times had their progress across the plains halted by wild herds would probably be amazed by these prices, but such is the civilization they helped to advance.

Blissful Republican Picture

By John Chamberlain

When Ray Bliss, a "nuts and bolts" man, was called to Washington, D.C., from Ohio to take over the controls at Republican National Committee headquarters, it was feared that his "technician's approach" might fail to revitalize a party that desperately needed a new "image" (there goes that cliché again) to compete with the Democrats. But the technical approach has paid off, and the "image" is taking care of itself.

What Bliss honestly tried to do was to give each Republican his chance once the battle of ideologies had been fought out in the primaries. For example, he had problems in Idaho and in Massachusetts which involved characters who were poles apart from the standpoint of philosophy, yet who needed identical help on November 8 when it came to the business of winning. In Idaho the Republican liberals were threatening to walk out on the chosen conservative Republican nominee for governor, Don Samuelson. In Massachusetts, it was the other way round: conservatives were muttering against the liberal Republican candidate for the Senate, Ed Brooke, a Negro who, as attorney general, had demonstrated great voting ability. Both Samuelson and Brooke needed money, but more than that they needed someone to come into their respective states and knock Republican heads together. Bliss performed an identical service for both candidates and the "technician's approach" paid off in victories for two men who might logically be expected to get into shouting match if they were asked to debate values. The important thing, to Bliss, is that both Samuelson and Brooke carry the Republican label.

In its reliance on this sort of engineering, the Republican Party has finally taken a leaf out of the Democratic book. For years the Democrats have managed to put over an East-land in Mississippi and an Adam Clayton Powell in New York's Harlem without blush or apology for what this does to "image." The Democratic theory has been that ideologues have their opportunities in the primary campaigns, and that once the verdict of the people has been spoken in the primaries it is time for the technicians to take over.

Conservatives have tended to distrust Ray Bliss, largely because he replaced Dean Burch, a Goldwater stalwart. But in all honesty, they must admit that Bliss's technical approach did well for them. I have two endorsement lists before me, one put out by the American Conservative Union and the other by the Ripon Society. Out of 179 Republican candidates backed by the American Conservative Union for the U. S. Senate, the House of Representatives or for Governor, 155 won and only twenty-four lost. The liberal Ripon Society had a record of seventy-seven victories and thirty-eight defeats for their endorsements for Congressional or State Governor offices. So for what comparative figures are worth, the Republican conservatives got a six-to-one victory ride, whereas the Ripon liberals had to be satisfied with a two-to-one performance.

The figures are somewhat deceptive, for in certain instances both the American Conservative Union and the Ripon Society supported the same candidates. But the point I am making is that the Republican conservative "image" was not hurt in the least by Ray Bliss's "technical approach." I wouldn't have believed this two years ago, but the pudding's proof is in the eating.

As a result of the 1966 elections the Republican "image" in the House of Representatives will be more conservative than it has been. In the Senate, where the Republicans picked up an additional three seats, the liberals got two men, Mark Hatfield of Oregon and Charles Percy of Illinois, to the conservatives' one, Howard Baker of Tennessee. But Percy, I predict, will try to find voluntary alternatives to Great Society compulsion.

Republican successes in the races for governor can be twisted to favor either conservatism or liberalism, for they offer a picture that covers the whole spectrum. A Rockefeller in New York is "balanced" by a Reagan in California. A Shafer in Pennsylvania, as a replacement for Scranton, leaves things just a little more conservatively tinged in that State than they were before, but a vastly successful Romney in Michigan, who seems to be the presidential candidate of the Rockefeller-Javits liberals, means that middle-roader Richard Nixon must fight to keep the gains he has been building for himself among the party faithful. However, if Romney gets the 1968 nod, it won't be because of any special 1966 favoritism on the part of Ray Bliss. Give the man his due, he worked just as hard for a Reagan as he did for Romney or Rockefeller.

She was thus engaged when a meter reader descended to the basement. The lady froze in a corner, praying that she might avoid his gaze. She thought she had brought it off, too, until, just before exiting, he waved gaily at her and told her, "I sure hope your team wins, ma'am!"

He did, too.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Our daughter is going to school to become a registered X-ray technician. She is most excited about her training but we are worried. Some friends of ours say "it will take ten years off her life and make her sterile if she works around X-rays."

We don't want to worry her or interfere with her life, but we are anxious about it.

Mrs. R.G.W., India: Dear Mrs. W.G.: To be an X-ray technician is to play a valuable role in medicine. It is a highly skilled and rewarding profession, one that brings with it dignity and personal satisfaction. Let me assure you that there is no chance of your daughter being subjected to any radiation hazard that will "take years off her life" or that will interfere with the possibility of her having children after marriage.

The protective devices are so rigidly supervised that leakage of radiation is almost impossible unless the technician is careless and does not use the safeguards.

If you were to walk into any X-ray room in any hospital, laboratory or private doctor's office you would find all personnel wearing a small square badge. This contains a piece of X-ray film. At regular intervals this film is developed to see if, in the course of a day's activity, the person wearing it is exposed to radiation.

Your daughter should not be deprived of her chosen occupation and you must not be terrified by the friends who are kind but unaware of the safety of her job.

Incidentally, patients should know that during the routine examination of the intestines, gall bladder, kidneys and the chest they are completely protected from any danger of over-exposure to X-ray. Too many people are fearful that these and even dental X-rays may cause them harm.

Doctors and dentists know exactly how often X-rays can be repeated without the slightest danger. Their advice must be followed.

I have been told that I have a peptic ulcer. Must I stay on the ulcer diet even after it heals?

Mr. C.L., Virginia: Dear Mr. .: At the time that you were told that you had an ulcer certain recommendations must have been made about your diet. The purpose of any ulcer diet is to keep the stomach filled with some food in order to reduce the hunger pains.

Another reason for a special diet is to reduce or balance the amount of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Still another reason is to give nourishment with foods that are smooth, bland, nonirritating and soothing to the lining of the stomach.

Even after an ulcer heals irritating foods and alcohol must be kept to a minimum. You should definitely avoid fried food, spices, coffee, meat broths, raw fruit, pork and coarse whole grain cereal or bread.

Such a dietary regime in the absence of tobacco with controlled emotional stress can reduce the possibility of the recurrence of the ulcer.

Punishment is the wrong way to control thumbsucking.

The Business World

NEW YORK (AP) — Before the end of the year, banks here are expected to try an experiment that has, to a degree, been termed successfully in Chicago. They will accept payments for traffic tickets.

The idea was unheard of a decade ago.

The very concept of banks is changing. Once the handlers of cash and checks, many banks now view themselves instead as service institutions whose main job is to find a need and then satisfy it. Money may be incidental.

A credit blank isn't far away. All this is an intermediate stage. The eventual goal of this electronic banking is the cashless society. Accounts will be constantly updated whenever a purchase is made. Many bills will be paid automatically.

When this stage is reached in the distant future, your bank will be like a personal utility from which you draw to make purchases almost as you draw on the power company for electricity to light your lamps.

That's what all the commotion is about. It's the reason why the frost is off the seller's window and is melting from the vice president's face. They're lining up customers for future business.

A HOUSEWIFE with her hair in curlers, relates Jerome Beatty, carted a load of dirty wash down to the basement laundry room, and while she was at it, decided to throw the dress she was wearing into the washing machine, too. Left in her shoes and brief undergarments, she noticed some dust in the corner of the cellar and, not wishing to get her newly washed hair dirty, she donned a discarded football helmet before sweeping the dust out.

She was thus engaged when a meter reader descended to the basement. The lady froze in a corner, praying that she might avoid his gaze. She thought she had brought it off, too, until, just before exiting, he waved gaily at her and told her, "I sure hope your team wins, ma'am!"

When real-estate operator Bill Zeckendorf was at the height of his meteoric career, he confessed that one of his first big-time experiments was to lavish a cool half million dollars on a spectacular Madison Avenue penthouse office. "I was sure," he explained later, "that on some lucky afternoon, right after lunch, with the right man, I'd get back the whole cost of the job in one quick deal."

He did, too.

A particularly unkempt and untalented Village poet persisted in submitting his material to a tough editor of a national weekly. The editor finally wrote him, "For Heaven's sake, curb your doggerel."

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

Our daughter is going to school to become a registered X-ray technician. She is most excited about her training but we are worried. Some friends of ours say "it will take ten years off her life and make her sterile if she works around X-rays."

We don't want to worry her or interfere with her life, but we are anxious about it.

Mrs. R.G.W., Indiana

Dear Mrs. W.: To be an X-ray technician is to play a valuable role in medicine. It is a highly skilled and rewarding profession, one that brings with it dignity and personal satisfaction. Let me assure you that there is no chance of your daughter being subjected to any radiation hazard that will "take years off her life" or that will interfere with the possibility of her having children after marriage.

The protective devices are so rigidly supervised that leakage of radiation is almost impossible unless the technician is careless and does not use the safeguards.

If you were to walk into any X-ray room in any hospital, laboratory or private doctor's office you would find all personnel wearing a small square badge. This contains a piece of X-ray film. At regular intervals this film is developed to see if, in the course of a day's activity, the person wearing it is exposed to radiation.

Your daughter should not be deprived of her chosen occupation and you must not be terrified by the friends who are kind but unaware of the safety of h.r. job.

Incidentally, patients should know that during the routine examination of the intestines, gall bladder, kidneys and the chest they are completely protected from any danger of over-exposure to X-ray. Too many people are fearful that these and even dental X-rays may cause them harm.

Doctors and dentists know exactly how often X-rays can be repeated without the slightest danger. Their advice must be followed.

I have been told that I have a peptic ulcer. Must I stay on the ulcer diet even after it heals?

Mr. C.L., Virginia

Dear Mr. C.: At the time that you were told that you had an ulcer certain recommendations must have been made about your diet. The purpose of any ulcer diet is to keep the stomach filled with some food in order to reduce the hunger pains.

Another reason for a special diet is to reduce or balance the amount of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Still another reason is to give nourishment with foods that are smooth, bland, nonirritating and soothing to the lining of the stomach.

Even after an ulcer heals irritating foods and alcohol must be kept to a minimum. You should definitely avoid fried food, spices, coffee, meat broths, raw fruit, pork and coarse whole grain cereal or bread.

Such a dietary regime in the absence of tobacco with controlled emotional stress can reduce the possibility of the recurrence of the ulcer.

Punishment is the wrong way to control thumbsucking.

The Business World

By John Cuniff

NEW YORK (AP) — Before the end of the year, banks here are expected to try an experiment that has, to a degree, been termed successfully in Chicago. They will accept payments for traffic tickets.
The idea was unheard of a decade ago.
The very concept of banks is changing. Once the handlers of cash and checks, many banks now view themselves instead as service institutions whose main job is to find a need and then satisfy it. Money may be incidental.
The big change, then, hasn't been merely the disappearance of fortress facades and stony smiles and their replacement with something more pleasant. The big change can't always be seen.
A vice president of one of the nation's largest "full service" banks commented recently that banking practices today would have disturbed his board of directors just three decades ago. "They would have been considered frightening variations," he said.
Two big factors are involved: Behind the revolution are machines, particularly the electronic computer. These permit banks to handle an enormous volume of paper work. They now are able to keep records, analyze them, transfer them at a pace once impossible.
Ahead of this revolution is the prospect of markets that never before existed. Modern America's middle class is growing. Affluence is spreading. People are buying, traveling as never before. And they use credit.

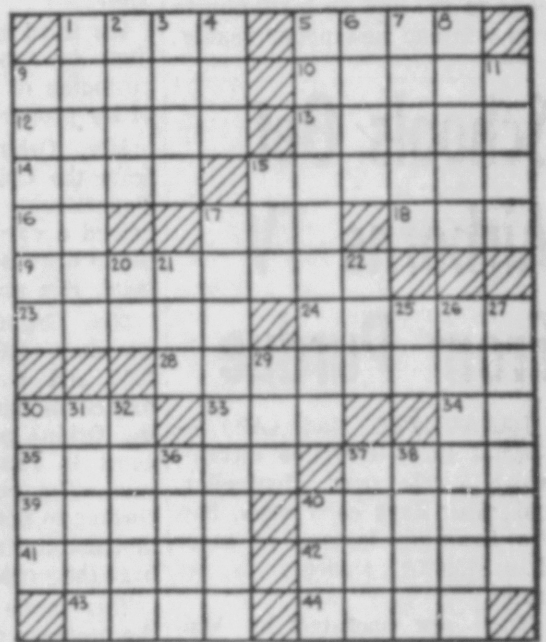

A credit blank isn't far away. All this is an intermediate stage. The eventual goal of this electronic banking is the cashless society. Accounts will be constantly updated whenever a purchase is made. Many bills will be paid automatically.
When this stage is reached in the distant future, your bank will be like a personal utility from which you draw to make purchases almost as you draw on the power company for electricity to light your lamps.

That's what all the commotion is about. It's the reason why the frost is off the elli's window and is melting from the vice president's face. They're lining up customers for future business.

Vicar Finds His Flagons Contain Only Tribulation

LONDON (AP) — Should a vicar sell the church treasures to raise funds for repairs to the building?

The Rev. Robert McIntyre, 58, vicar of St. Cuthbert's in the Somerset market town of Wells, thought he should. So, when renovation of the church windows required more money than his parishioners could raise, he decided to sell two 300-year-old silver flagons. An art expert had valued them at $11,200.

That raised a storm he never expected. The sale was opposed by the City Council and the governors of the local Blue School, which was founded by one Ezekiel Barkham, who presented the flagons to the church before his death in 1641.

The issue became so controversial that the Bishop of Bath and Wells, the Rt. Rev. Edward Henderson, stepped in to appoint a consistory court to give a ruling.

Rectors and vicars all over England took time off from watching the ravages of death-watch beetles and the leaking roofs of their mouldering churches to see which way the decision would go. Most had some church plate stored away but little money in their restoration funds.

Just how much treasure the Church of England has is a matter for conjecture. One expert has set its value at $56 million.

Prebendary A. S. Hopkinson, rector of Bobbingworth in Essex, suggested last year that many of the church valuables should be handed to the state for valuation, then turned into cash for maintaining and restoring the most worthwhile churches.

"Apart from actual buildings and available sites, the church has a great deal of treasure hidden away in safes and museums," says Hopkinson, who is also a religious adviser to one of Britain's commercial television corporations. "No one can estimate the value of the plate and other valuables which are never in use."

The Rev. Mr. McIntyre seemed to bear him out. His flagons stand about two feet high and look like drinking mugs with hinged lids. They are never used.

"They lie in the bank vault from one end of the year to another," the vicar said.

When the Consistory Court met in Wells for what was expected to be a two-day hearing, 47 objectors turned up. But the court adjourned after only five minutes and gave no decision.

It was announced that the vicar had withdrawn his application to sell the flagons and the hearing was closed.

Dr. Walter Wigglesworth, chancellor of the diocese, said he hoped no more would be heard of the matter. Another way was found to raise the money.

The Blue School agreed to make a contribution and other local organizations will help. "I am very happy," said the vicar as the flagons went back to the bank.

Crable Slated For Debate At Pittsburgh

Richard E. Crable, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Crable, 430 S. Washington St., will journey with the Otterbein College debate team this weekend to Pittsburgh, Pa., where they will participate in the Duquesne University Invitational Debate Tournament.

Crable, a 1965 graduate of Circleville High School, is in his second year as a member of the debate team. Already this year, the sophomore speech major has participated in tournaments at the University of Akron, the University of Detroit and the University of Cincinnati.

At Cincinnati's Queen City Invitational last weekend, Crable scored 110 of a possible 150 points and tied for second place in the individual affirmative competition. He and his partner scored team victories over Cumberland College, Central Michigan University and Penn State University.

Crable has many speech and drama awards he has received in competition while a student at Otterbein and while a student at Circleville High School.

First Days Of Marriage Made Awful

By FRANCES L. LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Luci Johnson Nugent says the first days of her married life in Austin, Tex., were made "pure purgatory" by curiosity seekers.

Now, says the President's 19-year-old daughter, she and husband Patrick J. Nugent "are supremely happy." "It's the most wonderful life" and they're treated "like everyone else."

But she described the first four days in Austin, where they moved as newlyweds into a duplex home, as "pure purgatory" — everybody drove by to try to see us, they rang the telephone and came to the door."

Talking to reporters as she joined her parents in a hospital celebration of their 32nd wedding anniversary Thursday, Luci said the sightseeing has finally subsided, and she and Nugent are settling down to normal married life.

Luci says her husband has gained 5 or 10 pounds since their marriage Aug. 6, "but I've lost."

On their first month's anniversary, Luci said, "he took me out to dinner and gave me a big bottle of perfume." But, as the result of the outing, she recalled, he got sick.

"Before I was married," Luci confided, "I was not very neat but now I am the most finicky person in the world. I know that if I throw things around, there is no one but me to pick them up."

She said, "Pat is the most meticulous person. He never throws things around and if I do, he just stares at me until I pick it up."

Luci said they have their own friends in Austin, "but we don't have them in very often for Pat goes to school and works, and I don't see him too much except at night."

He is studying business administration at the University of Texas and is now employed at the Johnson family-owned radio-television station, KTBC in Austin.

Luci said she is taking one course — in the history of furniture — at the university and "it is just wonderful. I learn so much."

She says it has not been difficult to adjust to being a homemaker. She said she could cook before she got married.

While Luci painted a generally blissful picture, she did have this comment: "We have a little puppy, Kim, that is the most wonderful thing. When things get tense, we pet and talk to Kim and it breaks the tension."

We Can See Why, Too!

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once more the country escaped in President Johnson's illness — as in the illnesses of other presidents — the kind of rumpus which could occur because the Constitution is vague on what happens when a president is too disabled to do his job.

When Johnson underwent two minor operations Wednesday, he was under an anesthetic about one hour and a half. In about four hours he was whipping back into shape. Before he went to the operating room he and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey had an agreement that if Johnson was too disabled to carry out his job, Humphrey would have stepped in.

At best, it was only an informal arrangement, the same as Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy had with their vice presidents. There have been times in American history when presidents were terribly disabled but there was no arrangement for a vice president to take over.

The lack of a disability agreement spelled out by law could lead to a national crisis. For example: What if there was a dispute between the president and his vice president over whether the president, after the vice president had stepped in for him, was still too disabled to carry out his duties? In short, what would happen if a vice president refused to stop acting as president?

Perhaps by the end of March, 1967, this problem will have been eliminated. By then three-fourths of the states — 38 out of 50 — are expected to have approved the proposed 25th amendment to the Constitution which Congress okayed July 6, 1965. So far 31 states have approved.

The Johnson-Humphrey arrangements provided that while Johnson was undergoing and recovering from surgery Humphrey, if necessary, would carry out the presidential duties until Johnson had recovered. As of now the Constitution simply says this on presidential disability and succession: In case of presidential inability, the vice president will carry out the president's job; and Congress can provide by law for the case of removal, death, resignation or inability of president and vice president and decide who takes over as president.

Several times by law Congress has provided for the order of succession — among top government officials — to the presidency if the president dies and there is no vice president. But, while eight vice presidents were alive to take over a presidency vacated by death, seven other times vice presidents died in office. And one vice president resigned.

The proposed 25th amendment tries to prevent the nightmare which would follow if once a disabled president let his vice president take over but then later decided he had recovered enough to take back his job but the vice president, and perhaps others, decided he was still too disabled to function.

The proposed amendment lays down these rules: If the president notifies Congress he is unable to carry out his duties, the vice president will take over until the president notifies Congress he has recovered.

If the president is too disabled to fill his job or to tell Congress so or is too disabled to even know he is, the vice president will take over, provided he and a majority of the principal officers of the executive branch tell Congress so.

Once the president thinks he has recovered enough to take back his job, he will notify Congress. If then the vice president and a majority of those other executive officers think differently, Congress will decide.

Tapioca Pudding Recipient Of Presidential Blessings

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson may turn out to be the best friend a tapioca pudding ever had.

He can't say enough for the stuff.

Take Thursday night. He looked at the big, fancy cake turned out by the White House chef for the 32nd anniversary of Johnson's marriage to Lady Bird.

"It is pretty," he said, "but I think I will have to have tapioca."

It was that way all day at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

In his hospital suite, the convalescent President told reporters he couldn't remember his menu — but "I know I had tapioca."

And off he went: "Tapioca has less calories than any other dessert that you can get and it has great advantages when its made with skim milk and Sucaryl."

He said it is easy to make, filling, satisfying and low on calories.

By Johnson's account, a heaping cup of tapioca has 109 calories; a serving of ice cream has 200 to 250.

At his anniversary party, Johnson sent for a dish of left-over tapioca and fed spoonfuls to reporters, pointing out the calorie count.

He said Zephyr Wright, the family cook, makes tapioca for him in big batches, and puts it up in containers.

Johnson said he takes them along when he goes to the LBJ Ranch in Texas — or goes to the hospital.

He said no one can match her tapioca.

At best, it was only an informal arrangement, the same as Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy had with their vice presidents. There have been times in American history when presidents were terribly disabled but there was no arrangement for a vice president to take over.

The lack of a disability agreement spelled out by law could lead to a national crisis.

For example: What if there was a dispute between the president and his vice president over whether the president, after the vice president had stepped in for him, was still too disabled to carry out his duties? In short, what would happen if a vice president refused to stop acting as president?

Perhaps by the end of March, 1967, this problem will have been eliminated. By then three-fourths of the states — 38 out of 50 — are expected to have approved the proposed 25th amendment to the Constitution which Congress okayed July 6, 1965. So far 31 states have approved.

The Johnson-Humphrey arrangements provided that while Johnson was undergoing and recovering from surgery Humphrey, if necessary, would carry out the presidential duties until Johnson had recovered.

As of now the Constitution simply says this on presidential disability and succession: In case of presidential inability, the vice president will carry out the president's job; and Congress can provide by law for the case of removal, death, resignation or inability of president and vice president and decide who takes over as president.

Several times by law Congress has provided for the order of succession — among top government officials — to the presidency if the president dies and there is no vice president. But, while eight vice presidents were alive to take over a presidency vacated by death, seven other times vice presidents died in office. And one vice president resigned.

The proposed 25th amendment tries to prevent the nightmare which would follow if once a disabled president let his vice president take over but then later decided he had recovered enough to take back his job but the vice president, and perhaps others, decided he was still too disabled to function.

The proposed amendment lays down these rules: If the president notifies Congress he is unable to carry out his duties, the vice president will take over until the president notifies Congress he has recovered.

If the president is too disabled to fill his job or to tell Congress so or is too disabled to even know he is, the vice president will take over, provided he and a majority of the principal officers of the executive branch tell Congress so.

Once the president thinks he has recovered enough to take back his job, he will notify Congress. If then the vice president and a majority of those other executive officers think differently, Congress will decide.

Tapioca Pudding Recipient Of Presidential Blessings

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson may turn out to be the best friend a tapioca pudding ever had.

He can't say enough for the stuff.

Take Thursday night. He looked at the big, fancy cake turned out by the White House chef for the 32nd anniversary of Johnson's marriage to Lady Bird.

"It is pretty," he said, "but I think I will have to have tapioca."

It was that way all day at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

In his hospital suite, the convalescent President told reporters he couldn't remember his menu — but "I know I had tapioca."

And off he went: "Tapioca has less calories than any other dessert that you can get and it has great advantages when its made with skim milk and Sucaryl."

He said it is easy to make, filling, satisfying and low on calories.

By Johnson's account, a heaping cup of tapioca has 109 calories; a serving of ice cream has 200 to 250.

At his anniversary party, Johnson sent for a dish of left-over tapioca and fed spoonfuls to reporters, pointing out the calorie count.

He said Zephyr Wright, the family cook, makes tapioca for him in big batches, and puts it up in containers.

Johnson said he takes them along when he goes to the LBJ Ranch in Texas — or goes to the hospital.

He said no one can match her tapioca.

Rafael Trujillo prompted a warning by the United States that it would not sit idly by and allow the Trujillo family to resume dictatorial control of the Dominican Republic.

One year ago — U.S. air cavalrymen and North Vietnamese regulars renewed their five-day-old battle for control of the Ia Drang Valley in South Viet Nam.

This Christmas, give the man who has everything the timepiece that doesn't.

The Accutron® timepiece doesn't have everything. It doesn't have a mainspring, a hairspring, or a balance wheel.

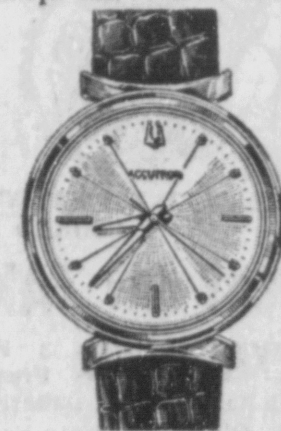

These parts make a watch run fast or slow. A bit of dirt or glob of oil can send springs, gears and wheels haywire.

The Accutron timepiece doesn't depend on watchworks. Instead, an electronic tuning fork divides each second into 360 equal parts, so we guarantee accuracy within a minute a month.*

Within two seconds a day. That makes Accutron the perfect gift for the man who has everything except the correct time.

DEAR ABBY: You are pretty good at getting right to the heart of things in very few words. Can you tell me why there is so much divorce today?

Monday Club
Members Hear
Mrs. Deming

Mrs. Barton Deming presented the program during a regular meeting of the Monday Club. Mrs. Ralph Dunkle presided at the session.

Miss Ann Spicer, who was sponsored by the Monday Club at Girl's State last year, reported on her experiences while there.

Mrs. Deming presented a paper on "Comedy in Today's Theater". She traced the history of comedy from the Venetian street actors of the mid 1500's to the present time, dealing specifically with American comedy.

She spoke of the rise of musical comedies in the 1890's and the comic operas of the early 1900's. These preceded the musical reviews presented between 1916 and the late 1920's.

It was emphasized that great show hits like "Connecticut Yankee", "Of Thee I Sing", "Life With Father", and "George Washington Slept Here" appeared in the early 1940's.

Avant Garde shows appeared off Broadway in 1950, Mrs. Deming reported. Presented was a new brand of off-beat humor such as "Barefoot in the Park."

A sample of a comedy hit this year is "Sweet Charity". One comedy opera on Broadway popular this fall was "The Apple Tree."

Mrs. Deming quoted from an article written by James Thurber in defense of comedies: "I believe it was Booth Tarkington who said, 'Sobersides looks at humor the way a Duchess looks at a bug.' It is high time that sobersides came of age and realized that like Emily Dickinson's hope, humor is a feathered thing that perches in the soul."

DEAR H. H. T.: Most divorces result from the illusion that a "PERFECT MARRIAGE" is inevitable and anything less is a failure. Consequently, when each discovers the inevitable human imperfections in the other, he becomes disillusioned, resentful, and frustrated. Then two otherwise normal, intelligent people, who, at one time "loved" each other enough to marry, becomes part-time strangers and sometime enemies.

Married couples should realize that a successful marriage is like a successful business partnership. It cannot succeed without mutual trust, confidence, and respect. And the sooner the "partners" get down to the business of making the best of the most challenging relationship in all human experience — marriage — the sooner we can turn our divorce courts into bowling alleys. And I'm all for it.

DEAR ABBY: When being introduced to a person is it proper to say, "I've heard a lot about you?"

HAL

DEAR HAL: It all depends on what you've heard.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has one habit which worries me to death. He keeps a cigar or pipe clamped between his teeth while pouring gasoline into the tank of the power lawn mower, or filling the gasoline tank of our boat. When I fuss he says I am getting all excited about nothing because his cigar or pipe is not lit.

I grant you, I can't see a flame, but when I grab them out of his mouth, the cigar or pipe are still warm. Please print this and ask your readers to write in and tell you if these circumstances have ever caused injury or loss of life. Or am I getting excited about nothing?

STILL WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Where there's smoke there COULD BE fire, but I'll leave this to the experts. In the meantime, I'd say your husband has developed a bad habit. There's always the chance that the fire isn't as "out" as he thinks it is.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "NOTHING TO WEAR": Wear a smile! It will do more for your appearance than a new dress.

Electric Car Saleslady Eager To Sell New Models

DETROIT (AP) — Grand mother Lillian Reynolds Wagner is far from ready for the rocking chair. She has that new-car fever again — ever since she heard the news about electric cars.

The attractive, white-haired Detroit lady was jubilant over reports that the electric-power auto might make a comeback. She used to sell them.

Ford and some other producers are talking about electricity for cars as a clean, efficient power source. Indeed, some experimental vehicles have already been built to use electricity-producing fuel cells.

Mrs. Wagner, proud claimant of the title of first auto saleswoman in the nation, expressed confidence that the electric auto, if put into production again, would find considerable popularity.

"I sold my first electric car in 1915 when I was 15 years old, and I think I should have a chance to sell the first of the new models when they are built," she said.

The four-time grandmother recalled that she had got into the auto sales business because her father, Joseph Reynolds, was general superintendent of Detroit Electric Co., one of the pioneer companies in building electric cars.

"My career as an electric auto salesman came about by accident," she said. "A customer who was buying an electric auto for his wife called one day and asked that my father have a saleswoman bring the car out for a demonstration.

"We had no saleswoman, so I was elected, and I got the sale. In the next five years I sold over $650,000 worth of electric autos, and since they retailed for about $3,200, that meant sales of over 200 cars—quite a feat in those days."

Many of Detroit's elite were included in her customers. Among them was Clara Ford, wife of industrialist Henry Ford. "The women of yesterday really loved their electric cars, and I am sure today's women would appreciate them just as much if the auto makers give them a chance to do so," she said.

Mrs. Wagner recalled that one of the toughest parts of her original car-selling days was that she had to teach practically all the women customers how to drive.

Her claim as the nation's first auto saleswoman was backed up by the Automotive Old Timers Association, which gave her one of their national awards. She was delighted to be listed with such award winners as Gov. George Romney of Michigan, former president of American Motors; Benson Ford, a vice president of Ford and grandson of Henry Ford; Chrysler President Lynn A. Tinsend; and Edward Cole, vice president of General Motors.

Mrs. Wagner recalled that the electric car of her day had a range of about 100 miles on a battery charge.

"Most of our trips were short, and it was a simple matter to plug the battery into an electric socket each night to recharge it," she said.

"We used to figure that it cost about $5 a month for electricity for our auto batteries, and I think that the electric car industry is talking about could be operated on about that same amount."

"I know that all the auto companies have shown some interest in revival of the electric car but if they bring it out, it will have to be as a nicely styled, streamlined car in order to compete with other cars."

Mrs. Wagner, although retired for 14 years, showed a letter from a Detroit giving her a firm order to deliver one of the new electric autos to him when, and if, they materialize. "I'd like to get some more orders," she said with a twinkle.

Oklahoma's New Governor Echoes Rhodes

MARIETTA, Ohio (AP) — Oklahoma's new governor will follow a theme of his Ohio counterpart: "Jobs and progress."

Dewey Bartlett, a native of Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes, a Republican whom Bartlett met last July at the National Governors Conference in Los Angeles.

Bartlett came here after the election to visit friends and work toward settling the estate of his mother, Mrs. Jessie Bartlett Noll, who died last July.

Bartlett was a state senator for two terms before he won election to succeed Henry Bellmon, the state's first Republican governor who, like Rhodes, won election on a "no new taxes" stand.

In talking of his program for Oklahoma, the 47-year-old Marine pilot turned oilman sounded reminiscent of Rhodes.

"I will be a governor who spends a good deal of time with industrial prospects," said Bartlett, who lives in Tulsa.

"Industrial leaders outside the state have a distorted idea of Oklahoma. They've seen it through the eyes of John Steinbeck. We'll have a process of continually bringing them into Oklahoma to show them what we have."

Bartlett left here Thursday for California and then a return to Oklahoma. His brother, David, a partner with him in an oil company, is a trustee of Marietta College.

Dewey Bartlett was born in Marietta in 1919. His father, David A. Bartlett, died when he was three, but his mother lived here until her death. Bartlett attended school in Marietta up to high school.

Bartlett faces one problem Rhodes does not have. Where Ohio gave its GOP governor a heavily Republican Legislature, Bartlett must work with a heavily Democratic body.

Local Teacher Lists Facts On Mental Retardation

National Retarded Children's Week Nov. 13-19, is being observed throughout the United States.

Mrs. Leora Sayre, teacher at the local Brook-Yates School, today listed some facts of general interest concerning mental retardation. Here is her summary:

Mental retardation has been considered the number one health problem among children today. Because it directly affects nearly six million Americans, it is one of the greatest challenges.

Mental retardation is not mental illness. It is not a sickness. It is a condition, like height or muscular structure, that can be altered within limits. Mental retardation is a term that the scientific world has devised to identify the IQ levels between zero and 75.

THERE are more than 200 causes for retardation — the cause equally as confusing as the identity. No factor excludes one from becoming a relative of a retarded child.

Each year more than 126,000 babies are born in the United States who will at some time in their lives be classified as mentally retarded.

There are many degrees of retardation, from very mild to very severe. Plans for advancement must be made on the basis of what the child can do, with the expectation that he will develop mentally as other children do, although more slowly.

Supported by the National Assn. for Retarded Children and other public and private agencies, six revolutions are underway to create and to maintain a new and stronger hope for the mentally retarded and their families.

They are: 1. The revolution in understanding; 2. the revolution in research; 3. the revolution in recreation; 4. the revolution in employment; 5. the revolution in maternal and child care; and 6. the revolution in education.

Teays Valley Tax Issues Split for Special Ballot

The Teays Valley Board of Education has called for a special election Dec. 13 in which two tax issues will be placed before district voters. The outcome will have a vital bearing on future school operations, according to the educators.

The district's residents turned down a nine - mill operating levy at the Nov. 8 general election. The issue constituted the combination of a renewal of six mills plus an additional three mills.

The renewal and the additional tax levies will be split for the special election.

The board of education has pointed out that defeat of the six-mill levy means the loss of 38 per cent of the district's income, amounting to $250,000 yearly.

IF THE six-mill renewal levy fails, schools in the district will have to be closed, board members pointed out. The levy currently is in effect, but it expires Dec. 31, 1966.

The board also feels the additional three-mill levy is crucial. It is needed to meet rising costs created by growing school enrollments, maintenance, purchase of buses and meeting teacher salary obligations.

If not approved, economy measures curtailing programs and services at the school must be initiated, the educators declared.

Voters of the district who have not registered with the Pickaway Board of Elections may do so beginning Monday and until Dec. 3.

Public-Supported Higher Education Seeks $150 Million Government Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two groups representing over 300 public colleges and universities will press Congress for $150 million in across-the-board aid next year.

And one of them, the Association of State Colleges and Universities, is joining a move for judicial review of the explosive issue of federal aid to church-related schools.

The resolutions came Wednesday at the conclusion of a joint meeting of the state college group and the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges. Member institutions enroll over 50 per cent of the nation's six million students in higher education.

The two associations said that "institutional support is the No. 1 unmet need in the pattern of federal relations with the academic community."

Support to date has been for specific academic projects or for buildings. The colleges and universities want general operational support, starting with the sciences.

They propose that $50 million be given the states according to student population. A second $50 million would go to institutions in proportion to the number of graduate degrees awarded. The third $50 million would be dispersed on the basis of existing federal research grants.

Rep. George P. Miller, D-Calif., introduced similar legislation last year and saw it die. He has agreed to reintroduce it. The state college association departed from the joint platform to support Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., in his fight for a law which would allow court review of federal aid programs to private education.

Ervin made the proposal again Monday after the U.S. Supreme Court refused to review a Maryland decision barring state aid to three church-related colleges.

The Supreme Court has held since 1923 that taxpayers may not challenge federal spending measures.

James P. Cornette, new president of the State college association, said the group was neutral about the outcome of any court decision. But Cornette, president of West Texas State University, admitted that in the past "probably a majority of our members held that grants should not be made to religious institutions."

America's Viet Nam Heroes Have Variety of Backgrounds

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

Bob Hibbs' father recalled that it seemed as if his son had been a soldier since he was a boy.

"Even as a small kid he had the ping pong table covered all the time with his war maneuvers," Walter Hibbs said.

Bob had assembled an extensive collection of miniature soldiers and equipment valued at several thousand dollars.

At 23, Lt. Bob Hibbs, of Cedar Falls, Iowa, was killed in action in Viet Nam. Although wounded twice, he returned to the scene of an ambush to help bring in a wounded comrade, and was killed.

Army Spec. 4 Danny Fernandez, 21, another veteran of the Viet Nam war, never thought of himself as a hero. He had been wounded but volunteered for another tour of combat duty after a trip home to Los Lunas, N.M. He was killed on his second tour when he smothered a Communist hand grenade with his body to save the rest of his patrol.

Hibbs and Fernandez will be awarded posthumously the Medal of Honor, the nation's highest decoration, at a date to be announced. President Johnson approved the awards for the two men Wednesday.

The President also announced that he would present the Medal of Honor to Army Spec. 6 Lawrence Joel, 38, who lives in Fayetteville, N.C., with his wife and two children, and 2nd Lt. Walter J. Marm Jr., 25, of Washington, Pa., for heroism in Viet Nam.

Joel, a medic with 17 years service, crawled to wounded Americans and gave them blood plasma and first aid after he had been shot in the leg. He was credited with saving the lives of 13 men.

Marm knocked out a Communist machine gun nest that had killed some of the men in his platoon and wounded him. Reports said he killed 18 Communists.

"It's an awesome honor," Danny Fernandez' father said. "For some humble family to get such an honor is staggering. He never thought of himself as a hero, so I don't know what he would think."

"Both myself and Bob's mother," said Walter Hibbs, "feel very humble — kind of a mixture of being humble mixed with pride and hurt."

"I'm very proud, to say the least," said Marm's father, Walter J. Marm, a retired state police officer. "To tell you the truth, I didn't know what kind of a soldier Joey would make. He'd never been in a fight in his life. I never heard him say 'hell' in all his life. I never knew him to be mad at anybody."

Lt. Hibbs joined the Army in August 1964 after he was graduated from the State College of Iowa, and had been in Viet Nam six months when he was killed. He had planned to marry Lynne Larson, a State College of Iowa coed, this autumn.

The Smithsonian Institution in Washington has asked for his collection of toy soldiers.

Teays Valley Tax Issues Split for Special Ballot

The Teays Valley Board of Education has called for a special election Dec. 13 in which two tax issues will be placed before district voters. The outcome will have a vital bearing on future school operations, according to the educators.

The district's residents turned down a nine - mill operating levy at the Nov. 8 general election. The issue constituted the combination of a renewal of six mills plus an additional three mills.

The renewal and the additional tax levies will be split for the special election.

The board of education has pointed out that defeat of the six-mill levy means the loss of 38 per cent of the district's income, amounting to $250,000 yearly.

IF THE six-mill renewal levy fails, schools in the district will have to be closed, board members pointed out. The levy currently is in effect, but it expires Dec. 31, 1966.

The board also feels the additional three-mill levy is crucial. It is needed to meet rising costs created by growing school enrollments, maintenance, purchase of buses and meeting teacher salary obligations.

If not approved, economy measures curtailing programs and services at the school must be initiated, the educators declared.

Voters of the district who have not registered with the Pickaway Board of Elections may do so beginning Monday and until Dec. 3.

Public-Supported Higher Education Seeks $150 Million Government Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two groups representing over 300 public colleges and universities will press Congress for $150 million in across-the-board aid next year.

And one of them, the Association of State Colleges and Universities, is joining a move for judicial review of the explosive issue of federal aid to church-related schools.

The resolutions came Wednesday at the conclusion of a joint meeting of the state college group and the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges. Member institutions enroll over 50 per cent of the nation's six million students in higher education.

The two associations said that "institutional support is the No. 1 unmet need in the pattern of federal relations with the academic community."

Support to date has been for specific academic projects or for buildings. The colleges and universities want general operational support, starting with the sciences.

They propose that $50 million be given the states according to student population. A second $50 million would go to institutions in proportion to the number of graduate degrees awarded. The third $50 million would be dispersed on the basis of existing federal research grants.

Rep. George P. Miller, D-Calif., introduced similar legislation last year and saw it die. He has agreed to reintroduce it. The state college association departed from the joint platform to support Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., in his fight for a law which would allow court review of federal aid programs to private education.

Ervin made the proposal again Monday after the U.S. Supreme Court refused to review a Maryland decision barring state aid to three church-related colleges.

The Supreme Court has held since 1923 that taxpayers may not challenge federal spending measures.

James P. Cornette, new president of the State college association, said the group was neutral about the outcome of any court decision. But Cornette, president of West Texas State University, admitted that in the past "probably a majority of our members held that grants should not be made to religious institutions."

America's Viet Nam Heroes Have Variety of Backgrounds

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

Bob Hibbs' father recalled that it seemed as if his son had been a soldier since he was a boy.

"Even as a small kid he had the ping pong table covered all the time with his war maneuvers," Walter Hibbs said.

Bob had assembled an extensive collection of miniature soldiers and equipment valued at several thousand dollars.

At 23, Lt. Bob Hibbs, of Cedar Falls, Iowa, was killed in action in Viet Nam. Although wounded twice, he returned to the scene of an ambush to help bring in a wounded comrade, and was killed.

Army Spec. 4 Danny Fernandez, 21, another veteran of the Viet Nam war, never thought of himself as a hero. He had been wounded but volunteered for another tour of combat duty after a trip home to Los Lunas, N.M. He was killed on his second tour when he smothered a Communist hand grenade with his body to save the rest of his patrol.

Hibbs and Fernandez will be awarded posthumously the Medal of Honor, the nation's highest decoration, at a date to be announced. President Johnson approved the awards for the two men Wednesday.

The President also announced that he would present the Medal of Honor to Army Spec. 6 Lawrence Joel, 38, who lives in Fayetteville, N.C., with his wife and two children, and 2nd Lt. Walter J. Marm Jr., 25, of Washington, Pa., for heroism in Viet Nam.

Joel, a medic with 17 years service, crawled to wounded Americans and gave them blood plasma and first aid after he had been shot in the leg. He was credited with saving the lives of 13 men.

Marm knocked out a Communist machine gun nest that had killed some of the men in his platoon and wounded him. Reports said he killed 18 Communists.

"It's an awesome honor," Danny Fernandez' father said. "For some humble family to get such an honor is staggering. He never thought of himself as a hero, so I don't know what he would think."

"Both myself and Bob's mother," said Walter Hibbs, "feel very humble — kind of a mixture of being humble mixed with pride and hurt."

"I'm very proud, to say the least," said Marm's father, Walter J. Marm, a retired state police officer. "To tell you the truth, I didn't know what kind of a soldier Joey would make. He'd never been in a fight in his life. I never heard him say 'hell' in all his life. I never knew him to be mad at anybody."

Lt. Hibbs joined the Army in August 1964 after he was graduated from the State College of Iowa, and had been in Viet Nam six months when he was killed. He had planned to marry Lynne Larson, a State College of Iowa coed, this autumn.

The Smithsonian Institution in Washington has asked for his collection of toy soldiers.

Local Baha'i Group Lists Weekly Thought

"The sun rises in the east and sets in the west. Each day has a different name, though illuminated by the same sun. A Day of God is one-thousand of our years, the Holy Bible says. Each successive Day of God dawned in the East, with a new Eastern name (Jewish, Christian, etc.), and reflected the One Spiritual Light into the Western World of that Day. Groping, stumbling followers and unsatisfactory results indicated the fading of a Day of Religion into spiritual darkness.

A new Day of God has dawned in the East, with a new Eastern name. Its approaching Light is visible in the West. You do not deny Christ if you awaken, open your eyes, and live in the present Day of God rather than in the past. Jesus said He would be with you only to the end of the age, and that He, Himself, must go away so Another could come. St. Paul instructs you to give up the elementary doctrines of Christ and go on to maturity.

When A Man
Gives Thanks...

When a man gives thanks he is recognizing how small a part he himself has contributed to this world's abundance.

When a man gives thanks he is expressing his affection for and his dependence on those who constantly share the experiences of his life.

When a man gives thanks he is laying aside his discontentments to rejoice in the more numerous and more meaningful satisfactions that have marked each passing day.

When a man gives thanks he is escaping from the webs of pride, greed and self-attention that could otherwise imprison his soul.

When a man gives thanks he is meeting God on God's own ground. For God is God! And we are His children.

When a man gives thanks he is discovering his greater need. For all that God has provided is but the threshold to all that God promises.

A Letter to Exiles
A MESSAGE OF HOPE IN A TIME OF DEFEAT AND DISCOURAGEMENT

Scripture—11 Kings 24:18-19; Jeremiah 29.
By R. H. RAMSEY
TODAY'S lesson covers the last days of Judah's history, up to the time of the final invasion of Nebuchadnezzar in 587 B.C. Jehoiachin, placed upon the throne of Judah by the Egyptian ruler, at first paid tribute regularly, but after Nebuchadnezzar conquered Egypt, Jehoiachin became a Babylonian vassal. Eventually he rebelled against Babylon and Nebuchadnezzar gathered Judah's ancient enemies—Syrians, Moabites, Ammonites—together and made war. Jehoiachin died while the war was going on (598 B.C.), and was succeeded by his 18-year-old son, Jehoiachin. Though he reigned but three months, Jehoiachin was a "bad" king who did evil in the sight of the Lord. He continued the war against Babylon and the Lord allowed Nebuchadnezzar to take Jerusalem and send 10,000 inhabitants of the country—including the young king Jehoiachin—to Babylon as captives. Giving the Hebrews one last chance, Nebuchadnezzar put Zedekiah upon the throne. Zedekiah, however, was also sinful, from God, that they settle down where they were and establish themselves firmly, for the adults in exile would not be coming back to Palestine. They would remain in exile for 70 years—the exile actually lasted 67 years—and few of the older captives would survive. But their children and grandchildren would return to a new land with a new spirit. Jeremiah urged them to build houses, plant gardens, take wives and beget children, and to seek peace for the city of Babylon and pray to God for its welfare. This last exhortation is not so strange when you consider that the Jews' welfare for the entire exile was bound up in the welfare of Babylon. The Jews needed a time of peace, and the only way to have it was for Babylon to remain at peace. "What could not be cured had to be endured." They could not change the situation. Therefore they had to submit patiently. Jeremiah warned them against hearkening to false prophets, who pretended to speak in the name of God, but actually had no message from and the Lord caused him to rebel unsuccessfully against Nebuchadnezzar. Now Nebuchadnezzar's patience was completely exhausted. He besieged Jerusalem, the city fell and was burned to the ground. Though the Jews had been set apart by God for a definite spiritual purpose, they had repeatedly deviated from His will, and ignored the warnings of the prophets sent by Him to bring them back to His way. As punishment, God caused the nations to the north of Judah to band together, invade the country and carry the Jews into captivity. The first of the deportations took place in 598 B.C., and it is to these exiles that Jeremiah's letter is written. Though the Babylonians did not enslave the Jews, but allowed them to settle in their own communities and continue much the same type of life they had led at home, there is no doubt that the people were deeply discouraged and depressed at being in a foreign, idolatrous land. Plunder On Saigon Waterfront Is Big Time Hijack Operation

SAIGON. South Viet Nam (AP) — Goods which cost an awful lot of U.S. tax money vanish into thin air — or, sometimes, into shallow water — in the dock area of Saigon. Amid rumors that some native port officials with salaries of about 10,000 piastres — $100 — a month are wallowing in the luxury of expensive villas and costly cars, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky denounced the port on Nov. 10 as "a den of thieves." During a waterfront visit, the prime minister told Brig. Gen. Pham Dang Lan, South Vietnamese director general of Saigon port, that any officials caught stealing henceforth would be shot. "I'm not speaking of you," Ky told Lan. "I'm speaking of the men who are working under you."

Pilferage at the Saigon docks is only one aspect of the graft, corruption, black marketeering and other chicanery of the Vietnamese war, involving hundreds of millions of U.S. dollars, brought to light by an Associated Press reporting team in a wide-ranging investigation.

Port officials say about 500,000 tons of goods, most of it originating in the United States, pass through the Saigon waterfront every month. Some experts estimate that thieves get 20 per cent of it.

U.S. Navy sources in Washington say that figure is too high, but concede that around 6 per cent of strictly military cargo alone never reaches its destination. Eight months ago this figure was 11 to 12 per cent.

Across the river from downtown Saigon is the peninsula of An Khanh, the major staging area for smugglers and thieves. South Vietnamese customs officers stay away from An Khanh, where you can buy anything from an air conditioner to an automobile tire, all stolen.

An Khanh is where the divers live, too. They go down to the harbor bottom and retrieve goods chucked overboard by accomplices on ships waiting to unload.

They seem to work harder on An Khanh than they do on the Saigon docks.

One recent day along the Saigon wharves, Vietnamese stevedores squatted in the shade. A forklift operator slumped, snoring, in the seat of his machine.

In open spaces between the cargo sheds, piles of cracked wooden cases, piping, and rusted and broken equipment lay in apparent discard. Some of the cases bore the words "Fragile — Handle With Care."

There were plain signs of pilferage: a carton which had contained medicated powder, discarded an empty, boxes containing small motors ripped open and parts remove, packages of tire tubes rifled.

An American Military Policeman showed a reporter a tall cardboard case which he said had been looted of liquor by Vietnamese workers.

The Vietnamese police and

Vietnamese MPs on duty at the gates leading to the street are supposed to check outgoing workers for stolen property.

But there is strong suspicion the Vietnamese guards are lackadaisical in their checkouts and some likely are taking a cut.

Patrol boats police the crowded river, but observers say there aren't nearly enough of them.

The hundreds of Vietnamese barges ferrying goods from ships in midriver to the docks are a major problem. Entire barges have vanished. Some may have been hijacked. Others probably were delivered into the hands of black market rings, enforcement officials said.

Late in September, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky became publicly indignant. His indignation followed the reported theft of ties his wife had ordered for bathrooms in the new palace.

Ky was quoted as saying that a number of businessmen had "deliberately colluded" with thieves in an effort to dodge customs taxes and "to get their insurance compensation." No names were mentioned.

Following up Ky's blast, government - censored Saigon papers ran front-page stories declaring that "well - organized" groups had stolen hundreds of millions of piasters worth of imports. At the official exchange, there are 118 piasters to a dollar.

Most imports are financed under the U.S. economic aid program.

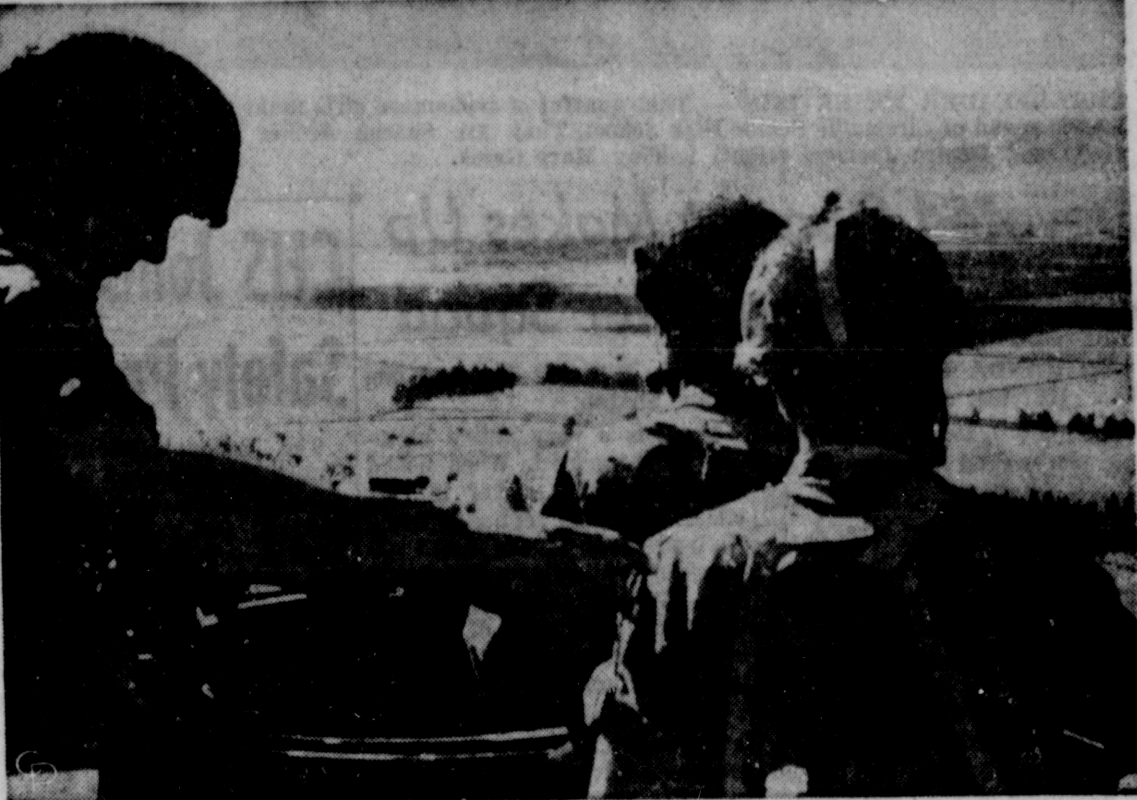

Since early summer, the military command has assumed widening responsibility for supporting port clearance of AID goods.

In time, and with enough resources, this may cure many of the difficulties.

Qualified experts say there must be strong action at a high level to halt bickering here between U.S. Army port authorities and certain AID officials.

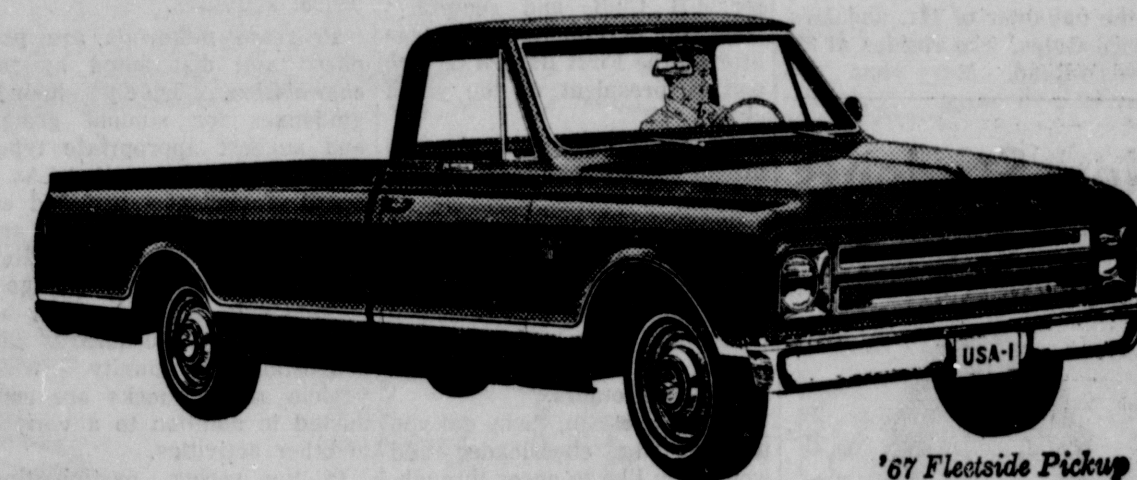

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara indicated, during his recent visit here, that he wants the port cleared — and what McNamara wants, McNamara most usually gets.

Some specialists in dock operations believe that the only way to move the cargoes swiftly is to bring in American sevedores and American civilian managers, and that the only way to suppress the stealing is to have American security agencies take over the whole task of guarding the docks and warehouses.

SYRIA OVER THERE—Israeli soldiers keep sharp watch on those Syrian hills way over there, a constant vigil that has been tightened since the new wave of border incidents.

Its new look is just one nice thing about the '67 Chevy pickup

'67 Fleetside Pickup

THERE ARE LOTS OF OTHERS.

For instance, new durability: New sheet metal construction discourages rust. Eliminates exposed joints on cargo box and tailgate. Provides self-washing wheelhousings with special splash shields. Inner cab is specially treated against rust.

Also, added comfort, safety and convenience: Improved visibility all around. Dual master cylinder brake system. Telescoping lower steering shaft. Energy-absorbing instrument panel. Interior color-keyed to go with exterior paint. One-hand tailgate latch.

And extra strength: Full-depth double-wall side panels (Fleetside models). Double-wall steel in cab roof and other important areas.

Plus famous Chevrolet truck features: Independent Front Suspension that gives a smooth ride—like a car. The most popular truck 6's and V8's. (And there are lots more, as your Chevrolet dealer will show you.)

Plunder On Saigon Waterfront Is Big Time Hijack Operation

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Goods which cost an awful lot of U.S. tax money vanish into thin air — or, sometimes, into shallow water — in the dock area of Saigon.

Amid rumors that some native port officials with salaries of about 10,000 piastres — $100 — a month are wallowing in the luxury of expensive villas and costly cars, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky denounced the port on Nov. 10 as "a den of thieves."

During a waterfront visit, the prime minister told Brig. Gen. Pham Dang Lan, South Vietnamese director general of Saigon port, that any officials caught stealing henceforth would be shot.

"I'm not speaking of you," Ky told Lan. "I'm speaking of the men who are working under you."

Pilferage at the Saigon docks is only one aspect of the graft, corruption, black marketeering and other chicanery of the Vietnamese war, involving hundreds of millions of U.S. dollars, brought to light by an Associated Press reporting team in a wide-ranging investigation.

Port officials say about 500,000 tons of goods, most of it originating in the United States, pass through the Saigon waterfront every month. Some experts estimate that thieves get 20 per cent of it.

U.S. Navy sources in Washington say that figure is too high, but concede that around 6 per cent of strictly military cargo alone never reaches its destination. Eight months ago this figure was 11 to 12 per cent.

Across the river from downtown Saigon is the peninsula of An Khanh, the major staging area for smugglers and thieves. South Vietnamese customs officers stay away from An Khanh, where you can buy anything from an air conditioner to an automobile tire, all stolen.

An Khanh is where the divers live, too. They go down to the harbor bottom and retrieve goods chucked overboard by accomplices on ships waiting to unload.

They seem to work harder on An Khanh than they do on the Saigon docks.

One recent day along the Saigon wharves, Vietnamese stevedores squatted in the shade. A forklift operator slumped, snoring, in the seat of his machine.

In open spaces between the cargo sheds, piles of cracked wooden cases, piping, and rusted and broken equipment lay in apparent discard. Some of the cases bore the words "Fragile — Handle With Care."

There were plain signs of pilferage: a carton which had contained medicated powder, discarded an empty, boxes containing small motors ripped open and parts remove, packages of tire tubes rifled.

An American Military Police man showed a reporter a tall cardboard case which he said had been looted of liquor by Vietnamese workers.

The Vietnamese police and

Vietnamese MPs on duty at the gates leading to the street are supposed to check outgoing workers for stolen property.

But there is strong suspicion the Vietnamese guards are lackadaisical in their checkouts and some likely are taking a cut.

Patrol boats police the crowded river, but observers say there aren't nearly enough of them.

The hundreds of Vietnamese barges ferrying goods from ships in midriver to the docks are a major problem. Entire barges have vanished. Some may have been hijacked. Others probably were delivered into the hands of black market rings, enforcement officials said.

Late in September, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky became publicly indignant. His indignation followed the reported theft of tiles his wife had ordered for bathrooms in the new palace.

Ky was quoted as saying that a number of businessmen had "deliberately colluded" with thieves in an effort to dodge customs taxes and "to get their insurance compensation." No names were mentioned.

Following up Ky's blast, government - censored Saigon papers ran front-page stories declaring that "well - organized" groups had stolen hundreds of millions of piasters worth of imports. At the official exchange, there are 118 piasters to a dollar.

Since early summer, the military command has assumed widening responsibility for supporting port clearance of AID goods.

In time, and with enough resources, this may cure many of the difficulties.

Qualified experts say there must be strong action at a high level to halt bickering here between U.S. Army port authorities and certain AID officials.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara indicated, during his recent visit here, that he wants the port cleared — and what McNamara wants, McNamara most usually gets.

Some specialists in dock operations believe that the only way to move the cargoes swiftly is to bring in American sevedores and American civilian managers, and that the only way to suppress the stealing is to have American security agencies take over the whole task of guarding the docks and warehouses.

Devoted Quartet Makes Up Reserve Cheerleader Squad

By WANDA FYFFE AND DENISE JACKSON

Sophomore, Denise Jackson, is the bright-eyed reserve cheerleader for '66-'67. Denise is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Jackson, who resides at 146 Dunmore Road. She has one sister, Teresa, who is married.

When Denise was asked what she thought the main goal of a cheerleader is, she replied, "the goal of a cheerleader is to promote school spirit. She should be a symbol of good sportsmanship."

Also when she was asked why she wanted to be a cheerleader, she replied: "When I attended last year's pep rallies I envied the girls who were cheerleaders because they seemed to have such a sense of leadership and responsibility."

An ideal cheerleader is, in Denise's mind, "one with devotion to her school, team, and the squad. A cheerleader isn't on the side line for the crowd to watch, but to get the fans to use their pep and enthusiasm in a constructive way."

Denise is now enrolled in the business course and after graduation plans to attend business school.

Sophomore, Mary Gates is our next reserve cheerleader. Mary is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Gates, who resides at 290 Lewis Road. Mary has two brothers Bill and Jim and one sister, Sharon.

Mary is a very active member of the squad. When asked what it means to her to be a cheerleader she replied: "being a cheerleader means I can express my enthusiasm and try to help my fellow students to do the same. It is a lot of fun and I think every girl would enjoy this opportunity."

When you consider a cheerleader's job, Mary says there are some advantages and disadvantages they are: "a big advantage is being able to do something for your team, school and student body. One disadvantage is the many hours spent at practice."

Mary thinks the student body, as a whole, gave the team a lot of support this year by cheering and showing an interest.

Mary is enrolled in the business course of study and after graduation plans to become an airline stewardess.

Another sophomore cheerleader is Sharon Archer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Archer, who reside at 1015 Sunshine Street with her three sisters and two brothers.

Enrolled in the college prep course, Sharon is active in Senior GAA, Nuclei Science Club, treasurer in the Stir and Chatter 4-H Club, and secretary-treasurer of Volunteers. Sharon attends the First Baptist Church and is president of the youth choir.

After graduation she plans to attend college and major in education.

When asked the significance of being a reserve cheerleader Sharon said, "by being a reserve cheerleader I have helped boost our team and have helped develop school spirit within myself and others."

To the question, "why did you try out for cheerleader and would you like to cheer throughout high school?" Sharon replied, "I tried out because I thought it would be fun I wanted to meet a lot of people, and I enjoy athletics. Yes, I would really enjoy being a cheerleader all through high school."

Last, but not least, is Debbie Smith who has been captain of the reserve cheerleader squad for two years.

She resides at 214 Brinks Drive with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Smith, two brothers and a sister, Cindy, who is a junior high cheerleader.

A sophomore, enrolled in the commercial course, Debbie is active in Senior GAA, Sophomore SOS, Curtain Callers, 4-H, and Red Cross Volunteers.

Debbie plans to enter modeling school or attend a business college after graduating.

After being a captain for two years, Debbie is quite capable of answering this question: "What are the duties of a captain?" "I believe I should try to set a good example for the other reserve cheerleaders. It is very important to me to be able to lead the cheers successfully and to improve the spirit of CPS as much as possible."

Debbie also named some advantages and disadvantages of being a reserve cheerleader. Advantages are "having a chance to improve the school spirit, meeting the cheerleaders from other schools, cheering at a pep rally, and going to the cheerleading clinic." Some disadvantages are "Saturday morning football games, making a mistake at a pep rally, getting cold at football games, getting hot at football games, and other people telling us how to do our own cheers."

This season the CHS Tigers, led by their able coach, Paul Starr, captured the SCO League crown in a season that showed only one loss. Monday night during a meeting in Washington C. Be Thankful On Thursday

By ANNE JOYCE

We are all familiar with the story of the Pilgrims and their first Thanksgiving Day, when after a good harvest, they celebrated with a feast shared by their Indian friends.

Many people now celebrate this day with a large feast with their families and friends, but seem to have lost the original idea behind the celebration — that of giving thanks for the many blessings bestowed upon them.

Many may feel that with part of the family missing from the Thanksgiving table, because of the war, they have nothing to be thankful for.

We must always be thankful to be living in a nation where we can worship and live freely. We should be thankful we have great leaders at the head of our government. We should be thankful we have proud, brave men defending our homeland and its freedoms. We should be thankful we live in a country where poverty is not the normal way of life.

We have many things to be thankful for this Thanksgiving Day. It would therefore be wise if everyone took time out on this day to say a prayer of thanks for all the blessings bestowed upon us throughout the year.

Sports Briefs

By TOM GOELLER, GERALD MCCAIN, LARRY DEAN

When space permits, the journalism class would like to add to the sports column a sports quiz. We hope the addition will make the column more interesting and educational to the reader.

1. In what country are the 1968 Olympics being held?
2. Whom did Mohammed Ali defeat in last Monday's championship fight?
3. What team will represent the "Big Ten" in the Rose Bowl this year?

4. What college football team is the outstanding sophomore end Jim Seymour on?
(Answers: 1. Mexico; 2. Cleveland Williams; 3. Purdue; 4. Notre Dame.)

Circleville's great offensive power was not contained to the SCO League alone, for the tough Tiger offense overpowered almost every non-league opponent, with the exception of Pleasant View.

First Home basketball games will be Nov. 25 and Nov. 26 at Circleville Jr. High gymnasium.

Pros and Cons Of a Council

By JOYCE VALENTINE

A topic of controversy which is discussed almost every year concerns a student council.

Many students favor having a student council, many feel we don't need one or they don't really care, and many feel we already have one. The purpose of a student council would be to bring about better relations between the faculty and students.

The following are opinions of a few students on the question — "How do you feel about having a student council in CHS?"

Karen Griffey — "Just great! It would help the students by letting them express their opinions and not taking some other person's opinion."

Teresa Hughey — "I think it would be great. It would give the students a chance to express some of their opinions."

Randy Tatman — "I feel we are really in great need of a student government at Circleville H.S., especially now, since it is a senior high school."

Jeanette West — "I think a student council would be great! Although the class officers are of help, a student council could voice the feelings and opinions of the students more freely."

Susie Bennett — "In a way, we already have a student council — our class officers are working for us. However, even though the student council is out for the class of 1967, I think it's a very good idea."

Sue Johnson — "I think Circleville High School needs a student council, so the students may have a voice in the proceedings of the school."

Ron Miller — "I think it should be up to the student body whether or not it should have a student council. I feel it would help in a lot of school matters."

Bey Hughes — "For true expression of the student opinion I think a student council is necessary."

Deward Shaffer — "I myself have been to schools where there have been student councils and the students very capably handled this responsibility. I am sold on CHS having a student council."

LeAnna Brevard — "We already have a voice in what goes on, but a student council wouldn't be a bad idea at all."

Brown Thinks GOP To Help World Hunger

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Republican victories in Nov. 8 elections may help ward off massive world food problems, U.S. Rep. Clarence J. Brown Jr. told the 48th annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation Thursday.

"The change," he said, "is not coming a minute too soon."

Brown said tight production controls must be loosened to make food available to rapidly growing populations in underdeveloped areas.

Laser Beam Is Program Topic

By HERB AMEY

Kenneth L. Bartter, community relations manager at General Telephone Co., in Marion, presented a non-technical program on the LASER to interested science students at CHS Monday.

Bartter, using a low-powered LASER constructed by GTC, gave a broad brush concept of how the instrument works and how it is opening new horizons in the fields of communications, science, industry, medicine, and the military.

A native of Ohio, Bartter has a wide background in communications having been with a Columbus TV station for a number of years prior to joining the GTC in 1960. He served four years in the US Navy before attending OSU. He received both bachelor's and master's degrees there.

Rehearsals are over. Butterflies in the pit of the stomach are rampant as the curtain rises at 8 p. m. tonight in the CHS auditorium when the junior class presents "The Solid Gold Cadillac." Not only will the public be seeing another outstanding CHS production by director Ron Mead, but they will be seeing the first production in the new CHS auditorium.

Many more people besides the actual cast should have recognition. Pros and Cons Of a Council

By JOYCE VALENTINE

A topic of controversy which is discussed almost every year concerns a student council.

Many students favor having a student council, many feel we don't need one or they don't really care, and many feel we already have one. The purpose of a student council would be to bring about better relations between the faculty and students.

The following are opinions of a few students on the question — "How do you feel about having a student council in CHS?"

Karen Griffey — "Just great! It would help the students by letting them express their opinions and not taking some other person's opinion."

Teresa Hughes — "I think it would be great. It would give the students a chance to express some of their opinions."

Randy Tatman — "I feel we are really in great need of a student government at Circleville H.S., especially now, since it is a senior high school."

Jeanelle West — "I think a student council would be great! Although the class officers are of help, a student council could voice the feelings and opinions of the students more freely."

Susie Bennett — "In a way, we already have a student council — our class officers are working for us. However, even though the student council is out for the class of 1967, I think it's a very good idea."

Sue Johnson — "I think Circleville High School needs a student council, so the students may have a voice in the proceedings of the school."

Ron Miller — "I think it should be up to the student body whether or not it should have a student council. I feel it would help in a lot of school matters."

Bev Hughes — "For true expression of the student opinion I think a student council is necessary."

Deward Shaffer — "I myself have been to schools where there have been student councils and the students very capably handled this responsibility. I am sold on CHS having a student council."

LeAnna Brevard — "We already have a voice in what goes on, but a student council wouldn't be a bad idea at all."

Brown Thinks GOP To Help World Hunger

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Republican victories in Nov. 8 elections may help ward off massive world food problems, U.S. Rep. Clarence J. Brown Jr. told the 48th annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation Thursday.

Brown, Republican representative of Ohio's rural 7th district, said in prepared remarks that "there is an excellent chance that farm policy in our nation may be in for a great change."

"The change," he said, "is not coming a minute too soon." Brown said tight production controls must be loosened to make food available to rapidly growing populations in underdeveloped areas.

The 1,000 delegates to the Farm Bureau meeting begin consideration of policy statements tonight, including some aimed at property taxes and food price controls.

Distinguished service awards to L. F. Worthington, former Farm Bureau state board member from Sidney, and George H. Dunlap, Sunbury, chairman of Nationwide Mutual Insurance Company, were announced today.

Auglaize, Carroll, Preble and Jackson County Farm Bureau organizations were honored, in order, for securing the most advisory councils in 1966.

Service awards were given to Landmark Farm Bureau Cooperative Association managers Bernard Drake, Franklin County; Ralph Hobson, Greene County; and Wade Leaman, Carroll County.

Nationwide insurance agents receiving awards were Jac Scott, Marysville; J. W. Flowers, Washington Court House, and R. F. Robbins, Ashland.

County farm bureau groups receiving $50 cash awards for increased membership included: Northwest — Allen, Auglaize, Crawford, Hancock, Hardin, Mercer, Paulding and Van Wert. Northeast — Ashland, Carroll, Cuyahoga, Jefferson, Lorain, Portage, Trumbull and Tuscarawas.

Southwest — Butler, Clinton, Darke, Delaware, Franklin, Montgomery, Preble and Union.

Southeast — Fairfield, Guernsey, Hocking, Licking, Monroe, Muskingum, Noble, Pickaway and Washington.

Certificates for membership increases went to Henry, Logan, Marion, Morrow, Williams, Columbiana, Geauga, Harrison, Huron, Mahoning, Medina, Wayne, Adams, Fayette, Falia and Perry counties.

Program awards went to Henry, Licking, Trumbull and Union counties.

Laser Beam Is Program Topic

By HERB AMEY

Kenneth L. Bartter, community relations manager at General Telephone Co., in Marion, presented a non-technical program on the LASER to interested science students at CHS Monday.

Bartter, using a low-powered LASER constructed by GTC, gave a broad brush concept of how the instrument works and how it is opening new horizons in the fields of communications, science, industry, medicine, and the military.

A native of Ohio, Bartter has a wide background in communications having been with a Columbus TV station for a number of years prior to joining the GTC in 1960. He served four years in the US Navy before attending OSU. He received both bachelor's and master's degrees there.

New Lab Aids Science Interest

By SANDY TREGO

In science classes the students learn by doing actual experiments rather than just reading from a textbook. The new laboratory has helped further this learning process in Circleville High School.

There are actually two laboratories; one in the classroom which has 30 stations and another solely for project work, approximately 200 students use these laboratories; 165 from biology, 62 from chemistry and 33 from physics.

Added to the equipment used in the laboratory this year were the aquarium, herbarium, climatarium, hood and air compressor.

The laboratory is adequate for the needs of the students, although the materials could be used. It is a big improvement over the old laboratory and the students really appreciate the added equipment and facilities.

Atomic Plant Built For Desalting Water

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union is building an atomic plant for making fresh water at Shevchenko, on the Caspian Sea, the Soviet news agency Tass reported Thursday.

Tass said the conventional desalination plant has proved inadequate for the growing city. The Caspian Sea is salty and there is no local natural source of fresh water.

Irish Can Expect Spartan 'Gimmick'

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Writer

"The hay is in the barn," said Ara Parseghian.

About all that was left for Notre Dame and Michigan State were the finishing touches as the two top-rated college football teams awaited their momentous clash Saturday in East Lansing, Mich.

Irish Coach Parseghian, as his team got set for the trip today, said, "This game is fantastic when you consider the odds are staggering against two teams meeting for the national title this late in the regular season."

And Michigan State Coach Duffy Daugherty announced that the Spartans have been practicing a secret play to add a "psychological advantage. It's more of a little gimmick," Duffy said.

A national television audience will watch the No. 1 Irish and No. 2 Spartans, both unbeaten this season.

In another top game, Southern California, No. 7, and UCLA, No. 8, will square off in Los Angeles to decide the Pacific Eight's Rose Bowl representative.

Crawford Dies After Knockout

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Light heavyweight boxer Greatest Crawford, who lapsed into a coma after being knocked out Wednesday night, died early today in Timken-Mercy Hospital here.

The Brooklyn, N.Y., fighter was knocked out in the ninth round of a scheduled 10-rounder with Marion Conner, a 26-year-old, 179-pounder from Canton.

Crawford was 26 and weighed in for the fight at 170 pounds.

He was rushed to the hospital after efforts to revive him proved futile. He underwent surgery to remove a blood clot in his brain.

Crawford's death was believed to be the first ring fatality in an American professional bout this year.

Notre Dame Favored by 4½ Points

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Notre Dame rules at uneasy 4½-point favorite over Michigan State here Saturday in the battle of top-ranking, unbeaten football giants that both concede may be decided by a quick early break.

The prize is No. 1 ranking and the probable national college championship.

"These teams are so much alike — both big, well-balanced with good passing and running plus strong defenses — that the outcome may hinge on who makes the fewest mistakes," says Ara Parseghian, coach of the top-placed Fighting Irish.

"Although both are high-scoring teams, I think this might well develop into a defensive game. Then it's a question of which gets the big break."

Duffy Daugherty, loose and joke-cracking coach of the No. 2 Michigan State Spartans, agrees that a tight, hard-hitting contest is in prospect, but he warns:

"In an emotionally packed game like this, you can't tell. One team may get a quick break — an intercepted pass or a long kick return — and bust the thing wide open. Then both, or one or the other, might rack up a big score."

The blue ribbon battle, creating more national interest than any college encounter in a couple of decades, kicks off at 1:30 p.m. at Spartan Stadium before an expected sellout crowd of nearly 79,000 and a broad television audience.

The National Basketball Association has three 10-year veterans in Boston Celtic player-coach Bill Russell, St. Louis Hawk player-coach Richie Guerin and Larry Costello of the Philadelphia 76ers.

YOUR MONEY

By CHET MCKENZIE

How many times have you said, or heard someone else comment, "I just can't seem to save anything."

Living costs are high and they just seem to eat up your earnings. Experienced financial counselors have some expert advice on this matter of not being able to save. Human psychology enters into the picture. There's always a need for money in your pocket (or checking account). This doesn't mean that you're wasting money or being extravagant. You can spend sensibly and still use up all the cash available.

So then how do you save? The answer is that you must save before you pay your living expenses, not after. If you plan to save what's left over at the end of the month, generally you'll find there's nothing left.

The answer is to put your savings aside first . . . then learn to live on what remains. It's surprising how many people mind that they can live on $25 or $50 less per month, providing it's put away in savings and not in your wallet.

Start this savings-first plan yourself. Open an account with us this week, however small the amount. It will add up fast!

Michigan, OSU May Set Off Fireworks

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Michigan and Ohio State, two bitter rivals that have been battling since 1897, wind up disappointing seasons here Saturday in a clash that could produce some fireworks.

Coach Bump Elliott's well-oiled offensive machine challenges the Buckeyes' disciplined defense rated on of the best in the Big Ten.

Michigan is a slight favorite to boost its record to 6-4 and hand Woody Hayes only his second losing campaign in 16 years. The Bucks are 4-4 and need a victory to prevent such a personal disaster.

Hayes, who has a knack for winning games he isn't supposed to, figures to come up with some new wrinkles for the traditional finale.

Michigan, which has piled up 219 points, an average of more than 24 a game, has a host of individual standouts and a Buckeye flavoring. There are 17 Ohioans on the Wolves' roster and Buckeye players have accounted for 183 of Michigan's points.

The game could develop into a duel between the two best split ends in the conference — Michigan's Jack Clancy and Ohio's Billy Anders.

Clancy, the national leader, has caught 73 passes for 1,020 yards and four touchdowns while Anders, only a junior, has nabbed 51 for 641 yards and two TDs.

Michigan's attack is versatile, featuring such strong runners as Dave Fisher, Carl Ward and Jim Detwiler, all native Buckeyes.

And in quarterback Dick Vidmer, Elliott has one of the finest passers in the league. The transplanted Pennsylvanian has been on target 111 times in 211 attempts for 1,501 yards and nine touchdowns.

Ohio could find itself in a bind if it double or triple teams Clancy. Both Ward and Detwiler are excellent receivers and Detwiler leads the Big Ten in scoring with nine touchdowns.

Defensive halfback Rick Sygar from Niles, Ohio, heads up a secondary that leads the loop in pass defense which may put extra pressure on Bill Long, Ohio's sophomore quarterback.

The game marks the finale for 17 Buckeye seniors, 12 of whom are regulars, including such standout linemen as Mike Current and Ray Pryor.

The Bucks may be without their star safetyman, Tom Portsmouth, who has a shoulder injury. Otherwise, both clubs are in good physical shape.

Michigan, despite last year's 9-7 setback, leads the series, 36-22-4.

OSU ticket officials are sticking to an earlier prediction that 80,000 will watch the game. Television of the Notre Dame-Michigan State conflict, the No. 1 and No. 2 ranked teams, could cut into the gate.

Cowboys Can Keep Tackle John Neely

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Tackle Ralph Neely is officially a Dallas Cowboy today and officials of the American and National Football Leagues say the deal that brought it about signals a new era.

Neely, former University of Oklahoma star, had signed contracts with both the Cowboys of the NFL and the Houston Oilers of the AFL. However, he was adjudged Houston property by the courts.

At a meeting Thursday between K. S. (Bud) Adams, owner of the Oilers; Tex Schramm, president of the Cowboys; Don Klosterman, general manager of the Oilers, and Pete Rozelle, NFL commissioner, it was agreed that Neely could remain with the Cowboys where he has played since 1965.

However, for giving up Neely the Oilers will receive Dallas' first choice in the next player draft plus two other draft choice to be decided on at a later date; the Cowboys will assume all legal fees and out-of-pocket expenses that have accrued in the drawn-out court case, and the Oilers and Cowboys will play three pre-season games, first of which will be in Houston next year.

"This is the new era between the two leagues we have been talking about" said Adams after the agreement was announced. "We have to work together and I think this proves that we can do it."

Changed Redskin Squad To Meet Cleveland Browns

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Browns get a rematch Sunday with their victims from the NFL season opener—The Washington Redskins—but the scene has changed considerably since the Sept. 11 contest at Washington.

The Browns at that time were playing their regular season contest without Jim Brown, who retired from football last summer. They showed they could score points without Brown, coming from behind for a 38-14 victory.

For the Redskins, it was their first regular game under the direction of Otto Graham, former Cleveland quarterback.

Since that initial setback, the Redskins have won five while losing four, and they come here from a near upset over second-place Dallas. The Cowboys edge Washington 31-30 Sunday with a field goal in the final 15 seconds.

The Browns, who are in third place in the Eastern Conference with six victories and three losses, are battling to stay alive in the title race.

There have been changes in both teams since the opening game. Nine players on the current Washington roster were not on the team the Browns played Sept. 11.

The Browns, who have been hampered by injuries, also have made some adjustments. John Morrow, veteran center, was sidelined and replaced by Fred Hoaglin. Rookie receiver Milt Morin suffered a leg injury in the Philadelphia game and is expected to miss Sunday's contest.

The Browns are favored by more than a touchdown to win the rematch and boost their record to 7-3.

KEEP ALABAMA BOUND FOR BOWL—Undeclared Alabama continues on its merry way to another undefeated season and a Bowl bid with quarterback Ken Stabler, end Ray Perkins and linebacker Mike Hall leading the way. The Crimson Tide is 8-0 with Southern Mississippi to play Nov. 26 and Auburn on Dec. 3. Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant has been the head coach since 1958 and his record over the past seven seasons is a dazzling 62-5-2.

Irish Can Expect Spartan 'Gimmick'

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Writer
"The hay is in the barn," said Ara Parseghian.

About all that was left for Notre Dame and Michigan State were the finishing touches as the two top-rated college football teams awaited their momentous clash Saturday in East Lansing, Mich.

Irish Coach Parseghian, as his team got set for the trip today, said, "This game is fantastic when you consider the odds are staggering against two teams meeting for the national title this late in the regular season."

And Michigan State Coach Duffy Daugherty announced that the Spartans have been practicing a secret play to add a "psychological advantage. It's more of a little gimmick," Duffy said.

A national television audience will watch the No. 1 Irish and No. 2 Spartans, both unbeaten this season.

In another top game, Southern California, No. 7, and UCLA, No. 8, will square off in Los Angeles to decide the Pacific Eight's Rose Bowl representative.

Crawford Dies After Knockout

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Light heavyweight boxer Greatest Crawford, who lapsed into a coma after being knocked out Wednesday night, died early today in Timken-Mercy Hospital here.

The Brooklyn, N.Y., fighter was knocked out in the ninth round of a scheduled 10-round fight with Marion Conner, a 26-year-old, 179-pounder from Canton.

Crawford was 26 and weighed in for the fight at 170 pounds. He was rushed to the hospital after efforts to revive him proved futile. He underwent surgery to remove a blood clot in his brain.

Crawford's death was believed to be the first ring fatality in an American professional bout this year.

Houston Leads Offense

HOUSTON (AP) — The University of Houston leads the nation's colleges in total offense — 434.1 yards per game — and has averaged 36 points in scoring while compiling a record (7-1) bowl teams would like to have.

Notre Dame Favored by 4½ Points

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Notre Dame rules an uneasy 4½-point favorite over Michigan State here Saturday in the battle of top-ranking, unbeaten football golems that both concede may be decided by a quick early break.

The prize is No. 1 ranking and the probable national college championship.

"These teams are so much alike — both big, well-balanced with good passing and running plus strong defenses — that the outcome may hinge on who makes the fewest mistakes," says Ara Parseghian, coach of the top-placed Fighting Irish.

"Although both are high-scoring teams, I think this might well develop into a defensive game. Then it's a question of which gets the big break."

Duffy Daugherty, loose and joke-cracking coach of the No. 2 Michigan State Spartans, agrees that a tight, hard-hitting contest is in prospect, but he warns:

"In an emotionally packed game like this, you can't tell. One team may get a quick break — an intercepted pass or a long kick return — and bust the thing wide open. Then both, or one or the other, might rack up a big score."

The blue ribbon battle, creating more national interest than any college encounter in a couple of decades, kicks off at 1:30 p.m. at Spartan Stadium before an expected sellout crowd of nearly 79,000 and a broad television audience.

The National Basketball Association has three 10-year veterans in Boston Celtic player-coach Bill Russell, St. Louis Hawk player-coach Richie Guerin and Larry Costello of the Philadelphia 76ers.

YOUR MONEY

By CHET MCKENZIE

How many times have you said, or heard someone else comment, "I just can't seem to save anything." Living costs are high, and they just seem to eat up your earnings. Experienced financial counselors have some expert advice on this matter of not being able to save. Human psychology enters into the picture. There's always a need for money in your pocket (or checking account). This doesn't mean that you're wasting money or being extravagant. You can spend sensibly and still use up all the cash available.

So then how do you save? The answer is that you must save before you pay your living expenses, not after. If you plan to save what's left over at the end of the month, generally you'll find there's nothing left.

The answer is to put your savings aside first . . . then learn to live on what remains. It's surprising how many people mind that they can live on $25 or $50 less per month, providing it's put away in savings and not in your wallet.

Start this savings-first plan yourself. Open an account with us this week, however small the amount. It will add up fast!

Michigan, OSU May Set Off Fireworks

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Michigan and Ohio State, two bitter rivals that have been battling since 1897, wind up disappointing seasons here Saturday in a clash that could produce some fireworks.

Coach Bump Elliott's well-oiled offensive machine challenges the Buckeyes' disciplined defense rated one of the best in the Big Ten.

Michigan is a slight favorite to boost its record to 6-4 and hand Woody Hayes only his second losing campaign in 16 years. The Bucks are 4-4 and need a victory to prevent such a personal disaster.

Hayes, who has a knack for winning games he isn't supposed to, figures to come up with some new wrinkles for the traditional finale.

Michigan, which has piled up 219 points, an average of more than 24 a game, has a host of individual standouts and a Buckeye flavoring. There are 17 Ohioans on the Wolves' roster and Buckeye players have accounted for 183 of Michigan's points.

The game could develop into a duel between the two best split ends in the conference — Michigan's Jack Clancy and Ohio's Billy Anders.

Clancy, the national leader, has caught 73 passes for 1,020 yards and four touchdowns while Anders, only a junior, has nabbed 51 for 641 yards and two TDs.

Michigan's attack is versatile, featuring such strong runners as Dave Fisher, Carl Ward and Jim Detwiler, all native Buckeyes.

And in quarterback Dick Vidmer, Elliott has one of the finest passers in the league. The transplanted Pennsylvanian has been on target 111 times in 211 attempts for 1,501 yards and nine touchdowns.

Ohio could find itself in a bind if it double or triple teams Clancy. Both Ward and Detwiler are excellent receivers and Detwiler leads the Big Ten in scoring with nine touchdowns.

Defensive halfback Rick Sygar from Niles, Ohio, heads up a secondary that leads the loop in pass defense which may put extra pressure on Bill Long, Ohio's sophomore quarterback.

The game marks the finale for 17 Buckeye seniors, 12 of whom are regulars, including such standout linemen as Mike Current and Ray Pryor.

The Bucks may be without their star safetyman, Tom Portsmouth, who has a shoulder injury. Otherwise, both clubs are in good physical shape.

Michigan, despite last year's 9-7 setback, leads the series, 36-22-4.

OSU ticket officials are sticking to an earlier prediction that 80,000 will watch the game. Television of the Notre Dame-Michigan State conflict, the No. 1 and No. 2 ranked teams, could cut into the gate.

Boros Takes Early Lead In Houston International

HOUSTON (AP) — Old rocking chair hasn't got Julius Boros yet.

The 46-year-old, former two-time U.S. Open champion returned to the golf circuit this week after a couple of months of fishing and taking care of my seven kids. Baby-sitting was enough to keep me busy."

It must have done the husky, 6-foot veteran a lot of good, for he unreeled a late afternoon five-underpar 34-32-66 for the first-round lead in the $110,000 Houston Champions International Tournament Thursday.

Boros, a nonwinner on the circuit for 2½ years but collector of $38,085 in official money winnings so far this year, was not claiming any victory yet.

"This was a nice, relaxed round," he said. "Let's see what happens next. Maybe it can keep up, who knows."

He was pressed by Dick Crawford, a handsome, 27-year-old bachelor from Bella Vista, Ark.

Crawford was a two-time collegiate golf champion for the University of Houston but he hasn't won since becoming a pro in 1962. He was a stroke behind with a fine 34-33 over a 7-118-yard, par 36-35 course he says he's played 300 or 400 times.

There were five tour regulars with 68s, four with 69s, 12 with 70s and 10 pros and amateur Hal Underwood of Houston at par 71 for the superbly groomed Cypress Creek layout of the Champions Golf Club.

So there's going to be a lot of jostling for $21,000 first prize the last of the big money individual tournaments of the year.

Greenfield Opens

Cage Season Saturday
Greenfield McClain, sporting a tall and experienced squad, opens its basketball season Saturday by hosting the Fairfield Lions.

Other schools in the South Central Ohio League do not begin play until the Thanksgiving weekend.

At a meeting Thursday between K. S. (Bud) Adams, owner of the Oilers; Tex Schramm, president of the Cowboys; Don Klosterman, general manager of the Oilers, and Pete Rozelle, NFL commissioner, it was agreed that Neely could remain with the Cowboys where he has played since 1965.

However, for giving up Neely the Oilers will receive Dallas' first choice in the next player draft plus two other draft choices to be decided on at a later date; the Cowboys will assume all legal fees and out-of-pocket expenses that have accrued in the drawn-out court case, and the Oilers and Cowboys will play three pre-season games, first of which will be in Houston next year.

"This is the new era between the two leagues we have been talking about" said Adams after the agreement was announced. "We have to work together and I think this proves that we can do it."

Changed Redskin Squad To Meet Cleveland Browns

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Browns get a rematch Sunday with their victims from the NFL season opener — The Washington Redskins — but the scene has changed considerably since the Sept. 11 contest at Washington.

The Browns at that time were playing their regular season contest without Jim Brown, who retired from football last summer.

Since that initial setback, the Redskins have won five while losing four, and they come here from a near upset over second-place Dallas. The Cowboys edge Washington 31-30 Sunday with a field goal in the final 15 seconds.

The Browns, who are in third place in the Eastern Conference with six victories and three losses, are battling to stay alive in the title race.

There have been changes in both teams since the opening game. Nine players on the current Washington roster were not on the team the Browns played Sept. 11.

The Browns, who have been hampered by injuries, also have made some adjustments. John Morrow, veteran center, was sidelined and replaced by Fred Hoaglin. Rookie receiver Milt Morin suffered a leg injury in the Philadelphia game and is expected to miss Sunday's contest.

The Browns are favored by more than a touchdown to win the rematch and boost their record to 7-3.

Grid Deaths Now Total 9

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Claude Smith, a 210-pound tackle, appeared in 10 plays in Arkansas' game with Texas A&M Oct. 29. Last Tuesday he became the latest football player to die this season. The unofficial toll for 1966 to date is nine.

Smith, married and the father of a baby girl, collapsed after the game and was hospitalized for brain surgery. He never emerged from a coma.

Once again high school football was hardest hit by fatal injuries. Last season at least 22 high school players died.

Statistics also showed that from 1931 through 1964 a total of 328 school players died as a direct result of football injuries compared to 253 on the sandlot, professional, semipro and college levels. There were 146 high school deaths as an indirect result of 131 football injuries compared to 131 for the others.

AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "My Three Sons," the CBS series, seems to go on smoothly from year specializing in warm family relationships, gentle comedy, a discreet laugh track and a very comfortable if not dramatic Nielsen rating.

Over the seasons the half-hour show has survived a change of networks, substituted William Demarest for the late William Frawley as the crochety, lovable senior member of the family. It married off — and out of the show — the oldest son who outgrew his part and replaced him with an appealing little boy who started out as a visiting orphan but now is a bona fide offspring.

It made all these shifts without causing so much as a ripple of discomfort for the program's devotees. But "My Three Sons" went on a wild, tearing Soupy Sales binge Thursday night.

It was all very unexpected. Robbie, currently the number one son, started a birthday supply operation that became suddenly big business during one of the father's absences. In fact, the boys were so busy making birthday cakes, they forgot their father's birthday — very typical of "My Three Sons" style with nice little moral building up.

Then suddenly everybody gathered in the kitchen and started heaving cakes at each other — 37 of them in fact — as the laugh track whooped it up and whipped cream was scattered all over. Friends of the program devoutly hope this was just something the writers had to get out of their systems.

On another front, NBC's "Daniel Boone" goes its busy way as an early evening program designed to entertain and amuse children in the audience. Although it is set in the Revolutionary War period, it looks like a western and very often it acts like a western.

Thursday night's episode featured a shootout between a good Indian named Red Sky and a bad Indian named Tall Deer.

For all the presence of Boone's wife and children and occasional lectures on sportsmanship, manners and fair play, it manages to inject plenty of action and — let's face it — violence into most episodes.

The report in industry circles is that CBS will keep "It's About Time" in its present Sunday spot for the rest of the season but will make a radical change in its format in an effort to improve its low ratings.

Bucks-Wolverines Head Ohio's Card

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Ohio State and Michigan renew their bitter rivalry Saturday headlining the final weekend of football action on the Buckeye collegiate scene.

There's a light, 15-game card but some of the features could produce significant results.

Unbeaten Muskingum, bidding to tie Wittenberg for the Ohio Conference championship, plays at Baldwin-Wallace.

Coach Ed Sherman, finishing up 22 seasons with the Muskies, needs a victory to close 9-0 and set an OC mark of 19 consecutive triumphs.

Ohio State has to overcome Michigan to prevent Woody Hayes' second losing campaign in 16 years. The Wolves rate a slight edge over the punchless Buckeyes.

Coach Bill Hess' Ohio University Bobcats, floundering with four straight setbacks, could close 5-5 with a decision over Marshall. That would make the 1966 season a success for the Bobcats who lost all 10 a year ago.

Twice-beaten Dayton, shooting for an 8-2 record, plays host to hard-luck Toledo in a toss-up match that pits two teams with strong defensive units.

Xavier will count on Carroll Williams' passing to offset the bulldozing runs of Kent State's Don Fitzgerald in the home finale for the Golden Flashes. Both clubs have had disappointing seasons.

Bowling Green, with three straight victories since P. J. Nityray took over at quarterback, runs into high-scoring Temple at Philadelphia.

Cincinnati has its work cut out against rugged Memphis State on the road and Youngstown clashes with Buffalo.

In others, Wittenberg plays at Davidson; Findlay goes to Susquehanna; Central State is at home to Ashland; Eastern Michigan visits Ohio Northern; Denison battles Ohio Wesleyan at Bethany meets John Carroll and Mount Union goes against Westminster.

Miami tangles with Cincinnati in the Queen City in the only game on the scheduled No. 28.

NEW YORK (AP) — "My Three Sons," the CBS series, seems to go on smoothly from year specializing in warm family relationships, gentle comedy, a discreet laugh track and a very comfortable if not dramatic Nielsen rating.

Over the seasons the half-hour show has survived a change of networks, substituted William Demarest for the late William Frawley as the crochety, lovable senior member of the family. It married off — and out of the show — the oldest son who outgrew his part and replaced him with an appealing little boy who started out as a visiting orphan but now is a bona fide offspring.

It made all these shifts without causing so much as a ripple of discomfort for the program's devotees. But "My Three Sons" went on a wild, tearing Soupy Sales binge Thursday night.

It was all very unexpected. Robbie, currently the number one son, started a birthday supply operation that became suddenly big business during one of the father's absences. In fact, the boys were so busy making birthday cakes, they forgot their father's birthday — very typical of "My Three Sons" style with nice little moral building up.

Then suddenly everybody gathered in the kitchen and started heaving cakes at each other — 37 of them in fact — as the laugh track whooped it up and whipped cream was scattered all over. Friends of the program devoutly hope this was just something the writers had to get out of their systems.

On another front, NBC's "Daniel Boone" goes its busy way as an early evening program designed to entertain and amuse children in the audience. Although it is set in the Revolutionary War period, it looks like a western and very often it acts like a western.

Thursday night's episode featured a shootout between a good Indian named Red Sky and a bad Indian named Tall Deer.

For all the presence of Boone's wife and children and occasional lectures on sportsmanship, manners and fair play, it manages to inject plenty of action and — let's face it — violence into most episodes.

The report in industry circles is that CBS will keep "It's About Time" in its present Sunday spot for the rest of the season but will make a radical change in its format in an effort to improve its low ratings.

LBJ Feels Great; Recovery Normal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson slept late today, and got up telling his doctors he felt "great."

On the second full day after his double operation, Johnson still complained of soreness, however.

The White House said the President fell asleep about midnight — even before finishing his usual stack of evening reading — and did not awaken until almost 8 a.m. For him that was a late hour.

Before wading into some department reports, Johnson moved to a chair for a tray breakfast of melon balls, apple juice, chipped beef and tea.

The President's recovery so far has been routine — so much so that the latest White House statement on his progress contained no information of a medical nature.

Although Johnson said Thursday night he was "sore as if I was beat by a baseball bat" he's been working, talking — even celebrating.

Thursday night's medical bulletin said "he's still progressing." And there was no word to the contrary today.

Johnson did a bit of his progressing at a party in his Bethesda Naval Hospital suite, marking the 32nd anniversary of his marriage to Lady Bird.

It got under way late because the President napped until early evening.

When he awoke, Johnson donned street clothes for the first time since his surgery Wednesday morning.

The double operation removed a growth from his right vocal cord and repaired a rupture in the year-old scar left by his gall bladder operation.

"It hurts all the time," Johnson remarked at the anniversary party. The President said he has pains in his side, his throat, his right arm and his legs.

The President has not said when he will leave his $45-a-day hospital suite. When he does, he plans to head for his LBJ Ranch in Texas.

Johnson saw a stream of visitors and White House aides during his work-and-nap second day of recuperation. For the first time since the operation, he saw Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

He heard a report on the economic situation and possible spending cuts from Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler and other top advisers.

The White House said the advisers, not the President, did most of the talking.

Six Treated At Hospital

Six persons treated Thursday at Berger Hospital, included three who were injured in falls.

Two others suffered lacerations and one a minor head injury. All six were treated and released.

Ruth Ann Donaldson, 23, of 201 Harrison St., was treated after she fell at home and injured her left foot.

Murle Ellen Ferrell, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ferrell Jr., of 186 Fourth Ave., fell from a swing set and injured both of her elbows.

John King, 28, Route 2, fell while working at Pittsburgh Plate Glass and received injuries to his left leg.

John Musselman, 38, Mt. Sterling, struck the right side of his head while working at General Electric.

Donald Spurgeon, 19, suffered lacerations to his right arm while working at the Circleville Oil Co.

Joe Wright, 35, Williamsport, was treated after he lacerated his lower lip.

NEW YORK (AP) — From among the scraggle-haired set of Greenwich Village's dark eastern precincts, five subway stops from Wall Street, seeps word of new competition for the big board — a fleshpound stock exchange.

Nothing to do with unhip outfits like IBM and AT&T, man. It's just us humans. You can buy a little stock in Jon Brock.

"Invest in a company with a heart," Brock's prospectus says. "Me."

The bearded 24-year-old student and east villager by way of Fairfield, Ala., is selling shares in the next year of his life at $5 a piece. Each certificate brings .001 of his income over the next 12 months. An investment in the next three or four years presumably would give a shareholder a better chance at a profit.

Brock says his offering is class B, non-redeemable, non-voting stock. Buyers can get a quarterly report. He says they're not held responsible for his debts, actions or thoughts.

"Everybody else who isn't selling stock in themselves is a monopoly and liable to prosecution under the Sherman Antitrust Act, the way I see it," Brock says. "I'm cautious, I don't care to mess with the feds."

Brock says he decided on a stock sale when he found himself not eating occasionally and in need of "money leverage". The sale offer followed in an ad in the East Village Other, a bi-weekly newspaper that calls itself the journal of the American underground.

"The fleshpound exchange lists only me so far," Brock says, "but there are plenty of people who want to invest in something corporal and plenty of people who are good investment risks."

Navajo Chief Adopts Ways Of Paleface Politicians

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (AP) — The re-elected tribal chairman of the sovereign Navajo nation says the paleface politicians' old-fashioned idea about baby kissing still is worth while.

"It paid off, didn't it?" says Raymond Nakai, 48, of his 1,500-vote victory over Samuel W. Billison 41, in this week's tribal elections.

The campaign on the sprawling reservation in New Mexico Arizona and Utah was sometimes stormy. Fisticuffs broke out during at least one political rally.

But Nakai, during an interview, attributed his victory to kissing babies, shaking hands and hogan-to-hogan stumping. In a more serious vein, he cited his pledges of more social and economic advances for the 110,000 members of the nation's largest Indian tribe.

He said Thursday that unemployment on the 24,000-square-mile reservation is the greatest problem he must cope with in leading the Navajos during the next four years.

One of Nakai's proposed answers to the tribe's problems is spelling out the rights of the Navajo people, including adoption of a tribal constitution.

He explained that while Navajos had constitutional and states' rights, they don't have any rights now through the governing tribal council.

The 74-member council, equivalent to a state legislature, is an "instrumentality to the secretary of the interior," Nakai said.

"The Navajo people would much rather set up their government according to their will, desires and liking," he said. "They want a government they can call their own."

The Navajos, by treaty, are a sovereign nation within U.S. boundaries.

The treaty of 1868 and certain court decisions recognize so-called residual sovereign powers in the tribe, not the council," the one-time radio announcer and World War II Navy veteran said. "I would like to see these residual powers manifested."

Brock says his offering is class B, non-redeemable, non-voting stock. Buyers can get a quarterly report. He says they're not held responsible for his debts, actions or thoughts.

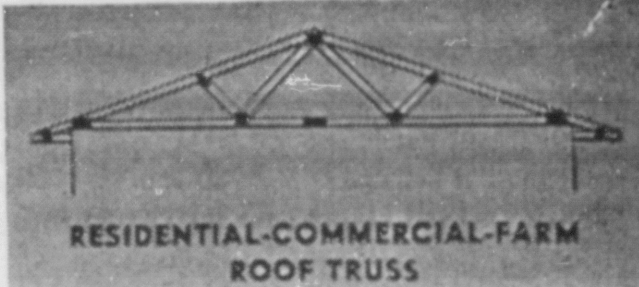

"Everybody else who isn't selling stock in themselves is a monopoly and liable to prosecution under the Sherman Anti-trust Act, the way I see it," Brock says. "I'm cautious. I don't care to mess with the feds."

Brock says he decided on a stock sale when he found himself not eating occasionally and in need of "money leverage." The sale offer followed in an ad in the East Village Other, a bi-weekly newspaper that calls itself the journal of the American underground.

"The fleshapoid exchange lists only me so far," Brock says, "but there are plenty of people who want to invest in something corporal and plenty of people who are good investment risks."
